Ex-Gov. Tobin Leaves Office

Maurice J. Tobin ends two years as the State's Chief Executive by taking the traditional last walk alone down the front steps of the State House. Crowds line the sidewalks in front of the building to witness the ceremony, while a lineup of cameramen get set to record the event. Gov. Robert F. Bradford, in taking office, warned Massachusetts and its cities and towns face a deficit of $75,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

Bradford Sworn, Cites Huge Deficit

Massachusetts and its cities and towns face a total deficit of $75,000,000 in the next fiscal year, Robert F. Bradford warned today as he took office as the 53rd governor of the Commonwealth. The new Governor, a lineal descendant of William Bradford, who became govenor of Plymouth Colony in 1621, said the cost of government —state and local— already had risen to the staggering total of $450,000,000 a year.

Tradition

"There is no one of us who does not recognize as paramount the rising tide of cost," he said. "This question must be squarely met. We should be less than honest if we did not face it now, or if we tried by some financial hocus-pocus to bury the stark fact beneath the complexities of the budget.

"We cannot deal with the question of government cost as relating to the State alone.

"We are confronted by the problem of straightening out the highly complex financial relationship between the Commonwealth and the cities and towns—a tangled skein we and our predecessors have woven over the past 300 years.

"Today our municipalities have no substantial source aside from real estate from which to draw their tax revenues.

"Their school systems, highways and welfare loads have assumed staggering proportions.

"In round figures the cost of government in Massachusetts — State and local combined — amounts to $450,000,000 a year.

"But this is not all. Based upon present requests for expenditures, the Commonwealth and the cities and towns combined are faced with a total estimated deficit of $75,000,000.

"In order to meet only maintenance expenses of existing services, we are asked to spend $75,000,000 more than our current revenues from all sources.

"Of this figure, $50,000,000 is the estimated deficit of the municipalities and $25,000,000 that of the Commonwealth.

"These facts cannot be sugar-coated. There is no easy way out. An answer must be forthcoming and it must come soon.

"It will require your devoted consideration to determine whether and to what extent these staggering figures can be cut by elimination of services now furnished by the Commonwealth.

"It is clear that real estate

Tobin in Lone Walk, Cheered by Scores

Former Gov. Tobin, relinquishing his office today to Gov. Bradford, took the traditional lone walk down the 139 steps of the State House at 12:10 p. m. and an hour later left by train for New York on the first lap of a month-long vacation in Florida.

The Governor said he and Mrs. Tobin planned to stay over night in New York and leave tomorrow morning for Hollywood, Fla.

"It will be the first time in nine years that I have been able to go on an uninterrupted vacation," Tobin said.

His last official act as Governor was at 11:58 a. m., when he signed the appointment papers of John Falvey, one of his secretaries, as director of local taxation in the state tax department.

He chatted for a few moments with friends then, as the first guns boomed on the Common in salute to the incoming Governor, he stepped over to the State flag in his office and kissed it.

He then walked down to the front door and started his lone journey down the stairs.

A crowd of about 500 was lined up along the steps and cheered and applauded him.

At the foot of the stairs his wife was waiting. She embraced him tearfully, kissed him, then walked with him to a waiting auto in which their children were seated.

Move to Bar Bilbo; Rayburn Floor Chief

By WILLIAM THEIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (INS)—Republicans who will control the 80th Congress which convenes tomorrow, moved at top speed to assure a harmonious start to the session on which the GOP rests its bid for the presidency in 1948.

Meanwhile, Congress Democrats, in the minority for the first time in 14 years, planned their strategy for the months to come and elected Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas as their House floor leader. Rayburn was nominated by Cong. McCormack of Boston who was expected to be minority leader.

Other developments today, in the prelude to legislation on proposed tax cuts, government economies and labor curbs, included:

1—Senate Republican leaders agreed on a move to bar Sen. Bilbo (D.) of Mississippi from his seat pending further discussion of charges against him.

2—Senate Democrats in closed session reportedly elected Sen. Lucas (D.) of Illinois as minority whip and conferred over the GOP attempt to unseat Bilbo.

3—Rep. Knutson (R.) of Minnesota, announced he would introduce a bill to slash Federal income taxes by 20 per cent when Congress convenes tomorrow. He said he hoped the measure would be the first bill introduced.

4—Formal selection of House Republican leaders was being made, with Rep. Martin of Massachusetts slated to be speaker, Rep. Halleck of Indiana floor leader, and Rep. Arends of Illinois, majority whip.

Sen. Barkley (D.) of Kentucky, was unopposed for minority leader in the Senate.

Rayburn, speaker of the House since 1940, said he was accepting the minority leadership because he is a "soldier."

He admitted he had talked by telephone with President Truman yesterday, but denied the President had influenced him to take the post.

Rayburn told reporters he had emphisezd to the Democratic caucus the party must "stand together on fundamentals."

Rep. Jenkins (R.) of Ohio, who withdrew from the race for House majority leader in the interest of party unity, asserted he is opposed to presidential aspirants, heavy contributors to Republican campaign funds or other outside interests seeking to influence Congress through control of men in key positions.

Jenkins declared:

"I shall continue my fight against this outside influence in the affairs of Congress regardless of whence it comes. The legislative program must be free from any such sinister domination."

MEXICAN TROOPS KILL 10

Freezing rain, which the weather bureau said would extend through orrow at least, today slicked down Greater Boston's fresh three-inch at of snow with an ice-layer that menaced motorists and pedestrians and threatened transportation tieups. Driving conditions were so dangerous that police appealed to motorists to refrain from all unnecessary driving. Some 5000 workmen and 2000 plows, trucks and bulldozers battled the twin dangers of snow and ice. Hundreds of tons of sand and salt were used to keep highways passable.

WAITS STORK — Marjorie Ishelle, screen actress, and r husband, radio actor Ira lossell, are awaiting the arval of the stork in Hollywood. e blessed event is expected July.

Freezing rain today will be followed by a drizzle tonight and tomorrow, the weather bureau said. Temperatures will be somewhat warmer tonight, but freezing conditions will prevail in suburbs.

Boston Elevated transportation was near normal this morning, officials reported. They added that the danger of icy third rails halting service on rapid transit lines was being "watched every second." Railroad service was reported only slightly affected by the overnight snowfall of 3.1 inches which brought Boston's total to 6.5 inches.

Despite the snow and ice storm, Boston schools were open today and activities in the port were not held up. However, unless temperatures got a lift from the low 20s on mid-morning, the weather bureau said the freezing rains would lay an ice hazard over all of southern New England by nightfall.

The icing will be so severe, the bureau warned, that it may interfere with telephone communications in some areas and will call for an all-day battle by highway crews to keep routes open.

Logan Airport officials reported all planes were grounded because of zero visibility and icing conditions. Schools wre closed all day in Watertown, Wellesley, Brookline, Saugus, Weymouth, Marblehead, Belmont, Waltham and Walpole.

Falls, motor and sledding accidents brought injuries ranging from fractured skulls to minor bruises to 200 Greater Boston residents.

Latest accident victims reported included Miss Margaret Whalen, 47, of Brown ave., Roslindale, struck by a truck at Hyde Park ave. and Mt. Hope st., Roslindale. She is at Falkner Hospital with a possible shoulder fracture.

Another death was added to the storm toll when Charles Stoddard, 74, of Portsmouth, N. H., collapsed of a heart attack while shoveling snow at his home.

Bradford Plies Snow Shovel To Start Day

Massachusetts' new Governor started out his inaugural day in much the same manner as many another Bay Stater did this snowy January morning—he got out and shoveled snow off his driveway.

Bob, Jr., 8, agreed to help his dad with the shoveling job and had a quarter to show for his efforts when he arrived at the State House for the ceremonies.

The snow shoveling job done and breakfast over by 8:30 the Governor then went to visit his daughter, Rebecca, 19, who is confined to the Cambridge Hospital with pneumonia. A student at Smith, the Governor's oldest girl was stricken two days before Christmas while home for the holidays.

When the Governor returned from the hospital the family was ready for the trip to the State House. But not until young Bob had fed his six turtles, four goldfish and four tadpoles.

At the State House, Mrs. Bradford, Ann, 18, and the two boys, Bob, Jr., and Charles H., 5, were escorted to a room off the House gallery to await the inauguration.

Mrs. Bradford wore a steel blue tailored suit with an off-the-face hat of white, trimmed with a blue ribbon matching her suit. She wore no jewelry. Her only adornment was a large orchid which, she said, was a gift from her husband.

Daughter Ann, her blonde hair in a page boy bob, was attired in a black crepe silk suit and an embroidered white blouse. She wore a small black hat on the back of her head.

In the gallery ante-room the family was greeted by the Governor's mother, Mrs. Edward H. Bradford of Beacon st., and Mrs. Edward C. Browne, of Winchester, Mrs. Bradford's mother.

'Camera' Shooting Victim's Shattered Leg Is Amputated

MR. AND MRS. ALPHONSE ROCCO
Wounded Wife Guarded in New York Hospital

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—The attractive young brunette victim of a New Year's Eve "camera" shoting in a Times Square subway station today underment an operation in which her left leg was amputated, police reported.

Roosevelt Hospital authorities, however, would neither confirm nor deny the police report Mrs. Olga Rocco, 28, victim of the bizarre shooting, had undergone the operation. Her condition remained critical.

Police kept a 24-hour guard at her hospital room and expanded their search for her former husband, Alphonse Rocco, whom Mrs. Rocco has accused of engineering the scheme which led Pearl Lusk, 19, to shoot her.

Miss Lusk told police a man posing as an insurance investigator employed her to take a picture of Mrs. Rocco and supplied a package which he said contained a camouflaged camera. Instead it concealed a sawed-off shotgun and the full charge of the 12-gauge shell entered Mrs. Rocco's hip.

Police, meanwhile, virtually abandoned the theory that a man who vanished into the surf off Brighton Beach, Brooklyn, was Rocco.

The clothing, left by a young man seen to wade into the ocean and swim off in his underwear, shoes and gloves, was shown to Mrs. Rocco last night, to Miss Lusk, and to the proprietor of the rooming house where Rocco lived, but no one could identify them as Rocco's.

Detective Henry Strauss said police had not entirely eliminated the possibility that the swimmer was Rocco but that the search would be pressed in other quarters.

"Even had the clothes been identified," he said, "in view of the cleverness displayed by Rocco, nothing short of his body would have stopped the investigation."

Harry Leventhal, a witness to the beach episode, gave police a description of the swimmer which tallied in some details with that of Rocco.

Leventhal told police he called to the man, who ignored him. He waited a half hour for the swimmer to reappear and then notified police, who sent out a launch in a vain search.

Miss Lusk has identified a picture of Rocco as the man who engaged her to take a picture of Mrs. Rocco with an "X-ray camera." She told police the man represented himself as an insurance investigator on the trail of a "big jewel thief" who carried stolen gems under her clothing.

She said the man told her he would get a "very good bonus" if the pictures turned out successfully.

Police said they also wanted Rocco for questioning in connection with a previous shooting of Mrs. Rocco, who was wounded slightly last November shortly after her marriage to Rocco was annulled.

LONDON WILD WEST

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Daisy, a spotted cow with an aversion to becoming steaks, upset the routine of the Portswood slaughterhouse, the schedules of the Southern Railway and the tranquility which English police expect on New Year's Day.

Daisy bolted for freedom, got into the railway's marshalling yards, charged trains, chased a stationmaster and two assistants and bore down on a signalman, who scrambled up a post.

After five hours police outmaneuvered Daisy, who was put out of action by a rifle shot.

She will become steaks anyway.

A-Bomb Secret Safety Pledged By GOP Solons

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—Military necessity instead of diplomatic barter will govern the disposition of the atomic bomb secret, Congressional leaders promised today on the eve of the new session.

NEW YEAR'S BRIDE — Mrs. Macy O. Caldwell, the former Antoinette Ricci, of Cambridge, leaves St. Francis of Assisi Church, Cambridge.

The administration's plan to give the bomb secret away through the Baruch or any other plan will be promptly and effectively blocked.

At the same time rigid security measures will be demanded to prevent any possible leak through the Civilian Atomic Energy Control Commission, which has just assumed charge of research and development.

Leaders made that plain as they planned to make absolute American control of atomic war weapons the first business of the session.

"We will put a quick and decisive end to the New Deal, one-world crackpot notion that we can trust our foreign neighbors as we trust ourselves," said Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R.) of Indiana, Senate leader.

"Experience should teach us that if we give the bomb to Russia or any of the totalitarian nations it may be used to destroy us.

"All of recorded history tells us that they would consider any treaty or agreement as they have in the past.

"Our only defense is to keep the weapon to keep the peace."

Sen. Capehart said the Senate would adopt a resolution making it impossible to dispose of the bomb secret without obtaining the approval of two-thirds of the Senate.

This is to be done through a resolution which Sen. Alexander Wiley (R.) of Wisconsin, will introduce as soon as the Senate gets ready for business.

U. S. Vote on Atom Secrecy Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—The American people should be given the opportunity to vote directly on whether they favor or oppose giving away the secret of the atomic bomb.

That specific question should be included in a general referendum regarding continued American participation in the United Nations, Ernie Adamson, chief counsel for the House Committee on un-American Activities, proposed today.

Mother Sees Quads for First Time

BALTIMORE, Jan. 2 (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Geast Henn was up and about again today, and for the first time had a glimpse of her new quadruplets, born Dec. 22.

From her second-floor room at St. Agnes' Hospital, the British war bride went to the premature nursery on the floor above and stood outside the glass enclosure as nurses gave the babies milk-formula bottles in their individual incubators.

Charles Henn, Jr., the father, faced the new year in a pleasant state of indecision brought on by a developing contest to keep the quads in the city of their birth.

The 28-year-old veteran said he had about made up his mind to reject building contractor C. W. Matthew's offer of a rent-free house and a $4000-a-year job in Newark, O. But still before him was a choice between several housing offers in Baltimore.

Latest of these, rent-free occupancy of "a new $10,000 house," had the wounded bookbinder overwhelmed. The ofter was made by the building firm of Edward Meyerberg and his three brothers, who told Henn he could have the first seven-room brick cottage to be completed in their new housing development.

Other Baltimore offers include a Cape Cod cottage at cost price and a Colonial cottage, rent-free for a year. All the local propositions followed a storm of letters to the editor of a local newspaper complaining of the city's short-sightedness in allowing its most famous family to be lured to Ohio.

One student made a 30-mile journey to a sheep ranch with news of the disaster. A rescue party with medical aid and stretchers, left today.

Strong Navy Urged Despite Atom Bomb

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—The House naval committee today formally declared against any sacrifice of security for economy, and mildly challenged the effectiveness of the atom bomb as a weapon against fleets.

The committee, wrapping up the findings of several sub-committees in the expiring Congress, said the policy on ship-building and repairing should be one that would insure against falling below the levels justified by "the international situation and this country's commitments."

It asserted desire for minimum expense must be tempered "by the realization the most expensive thing in the world is a cheap army and navy."

In laying its case against a repetition of the scrapping policies of the twenties, the full committee stamped its okay on a subcommittee's report which offered these general recommendations for an American policy on Pacific bases:

1—"For our own security, the security of the Western Hemisphere, and the peace of the Pacific, the United States should have at least dominating control over the former Japanese mandated islands of the Marshalls, the Carolines and the Marians, and over the outlying Japanese islands of the Izus, Boins and Ryukyus.

2—The United States should be given specific and substantial rights to the sites where American bases have been constructed on island territories of the Allied nations.

3—"With respect to Manus, Noumea, Espiritu Santo, Guadalcanal and other sites of American bases on islands mandated to or claimed by other nations, full title should be given to the United States because . . . they are links in our chain of security."

4—"The United States must not permit its Pacific bases to lapse back into a state of unpreparedness, as in the instances of Guam and Wake, prior to the preesnt war."

In discussing the Bikini atom bomb test, to which it sent four observers, the committee acknowledged far more damage might have been done had patterns of bombs been dropped.

But, it argued, the Bikini fleet, on the other hand, "was concentrated beyond any formation of ships that would be operating in time of war . . . The fleet was anchored. Therefore no evasive tactics were taken, no defenses provided and no counter-measures taken."

It reached the conclusion the "atomic bomb is not most effective against fleets, but rather that it is most potent against large land installations and concentration of troops. The potential destruction of naval operating and supply bases would appear to be a greater problem than to fleets themselves."

The committee, however, termed the atom bomb "the most deadly weapon that man has ever employed," and said that the public should not be lulled into a "sense of false security" because the results of the test "did not live up to some of the fantastic claims made for it in advance."

A-Bomb to Be 1000 Times More Powerful

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (INS)—The United States at the end of the war was within two years of developing an atom bomb 1000 times more powerful than those now in existence, former Asst. Secretary of War John J. McCloy disclosed today in an article in the Infantry Journal, a service publication.

McCloy declared "we are at a great crisis in human affairs" because of the loosing of forces which could destroy centuries of efforts by a single night's bombardment.

He said the challenge to the United States is to meet world-wide responsibilities by "backing up with strength an aggressive demand for freedom, tolerance and knowledge."

McCloy declared:

"The rocket and jet propulsion and biological forces, all infinitely more effective than the general public has yet comprehended, can be added to atomic warfare and with them it does not require much imagination to understand how the rate of extermination on this planet can be increased."

Anderson May Be Ordered To Get More Sugar for U. S.

By JEROME BUTLER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureaua

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—Three members of Congress promised today to introduce resolutions calling on Agriculture Sec. Anderson to obtain more sugar for Americans. They are Reps. J. Bayard Clark, (D.) of North Carolina; John Phillips, (R.) of California, and Bartel J. Jonkman, (R.) of Michigan.

Their resolutions probably will be consolidated into a single measure before they are reported on by committees.

It was declared the congressional action will be sought before Anderson goes Jan. 20 before the Sugar Committee of the International Emergency Food Council as it allocates the world's 1947 sugar production.

How much sugar each American family will get in the forthcoming year will be determined by the 28 member nations of the council, the United States possessing just one voice there.

In past international food meetings the American voice has spoken only feebly, with the current sugar shortage as a result.

The meeting of the committee was set originally for Jan. 10, but was postponed 10 days.

"We shall endeavor to rush the resolutions through the first stages of the new Congress," Rep. Clark said. "Anderson must be directed to act before he is outtalked by the foreign interests in the committee."

Clark, Phillips and Jonkman obviously were irked by Anderson's attempt to shift to what he termed "the sugar trust" the blame for the New Deal sugar fiasco.

Although a number of congressmen have emphasized that Anderson personally should conduct the negotiations and not delegate the responsibility to an assistant, he has completely ignored the suggestions.

According to A. M. Prosterman, secretary of the Sugar Committee, Anderson has not even delegated his own top sugar man to the important job of getting a greater share of America's own sugar for its own use.

Instead, Joshua Bernhardt, consultant to James H. Marshall, head of the Agriculture Dept. sugar branch, will represent the United States.

"Despite a more than 40 per cent increase in sugar production in America's normal supply area," said Rep. Clark, "American families will get next year under Anderson's plan about 25 per cent less than they did before the war.

"In the base period from 1935 to 1939, annual sugar consumption in the United States averaged 103.3 pounds per person.

"This year it was about 73 pounds."

In view of the sharp rise in sugar production, America's promised increase of five pounds per person is far less than America's share, said Clark.

"It is due to the New Deal's stubborn policy of providing for the welfare of other nations at the expense of the American people," he said.

"Our global planners have arranged it that way. It's up to Anderson to reverse this procedure. It's his responsibility."

But the shame, police said, did not stop the thief from getting away with about $4000 worth of other valuables.

Wife's Charge Revokes Divorce

A divorce decree granted Henry C. Lydon, well known Dorchester moving picture operator, last July, was revoked today a few hours before it would have become final by Suffolk Probate Judge John V. Mahoney.

The judge acted after Mrs. Catherine G. Lydon, the wife, asked for permission to defend the divorce action. She said she had failed to appear at the uncontested hearing last summer because of "fraud and deceit" practiced by her husband.

Mrs. Lydon said her husband told her he had dropped the case and that only recently had she heard he had been awarded a divorce.

Lydon was granted the decree by Judge Frederick J. Dillon on charges of cruelty. The Lydons have four sons.

GOP Congressional Brooms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Rep. Bender (R.) of Ohio passed out new brooms today to Republican members of the 80th Congress.

To each was attached a large card with the legend "Here's yours. Let's do the job."

The first broom went to Rep. Rich (R.) of Pennsylvania, frequent critic of government spending. The second was handed to Rep. Engel (R.) of Michigan, who did much complaining about Army-Navy expenditures during the war.

Each Republican in Congress will get one of the brooms.

As a dozen colleagues crowded into his office to get theirs, Bender handed a statement to reporters which said, in part:

"The time has now come to sweep away the cobwebs which have cluttered up our thinking during the war years. Republicans and Democrats alike must begin to plan in terms of peace.

"The 80th Congress must make it clear that this means industrial peace at home as well as international peace overseas."

A reporter asked whether some sympathetic Democrats might not get brooms.

"No," said an unidentified Republican congressman as he waved his broom. "They'll be swept out themselves, soon enough."

3-Alarm South Boston Fire Routs 11 From Apartments

Eleven persons, three of them children, were forced to flee from their homes today as a three-alarm fire caused damage estimated at $5000 in a four-story store and apartment building at Broadway and D st., South Boston. The fire started in a first-floor cleaning shop, apparently from a faulty oil stove and spread rapidly through the building. Other first-floor stores included a drug store, a package goods establishment and a tavern.

Residents of the building were warned of the fire by Mrs. Edward Mahan, who was [illegible] the house when she saw the flames.

She rushed to her apartment to get her mother, Mrs. Mary Garry, 76, and her two children, Warren, 13, and Carol, 6. Then she went through the halls, warning other occupants.

Among those who fled were Mrs. Joseph Straub, Mrs. Mary Keely, Mrs. William Walls and her daughter, Judith, 5, Mrs. Edward Jenkins and her son, Edward, 30, and Mrs. Margaret Crowley.

Second and third alarms were ordered soon after firemen reached the scene because of the congested nature of the district.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 2 (AP)—An Ohio State professor appealed to police today to search for his 20-year-old daughter and a 42-year-old divorced man with whom she disappeared yesterday.

F. E. E. Kimberly identified her companion as Robert H. Hemming, father of a girl friend of his daughter, Mary Virginia. Hemming called at the Kimberly home yesterday with the explanation he was taking Miss Kimberly to a party at his daughter's house. There was no party.

Police records show a Robert H. Hemming, formerly of this city, served 14 years in San Quentin prison for burglary, grand larceny and forgery.

Police said the man who called for Miss Kimberly was divorced and was visiting his family for the first time in 12 years. Miss Kimberly met him during the holidays.

Ferdinand the collie will hereafter lay off buried treasure.

Sniffing something of interest today under the piazza of his master, Michael J. Dillon, Paris st., Everett, Ferdinand plunged his head through a narrow opening, then couldn't go on.

Worse still, he couldn't go back.

Howls of grief and humiliation brought neighbors, who summoned firemen.

A couple of crowbars freed Ferdinand, who left the scene, a wiser dog.

ROBS BLIND MAN

The latest variety of "meanest thief" struck today but chose the Federal Building for his act and a blind man as his victim. The Secret Service is on his trail.

In the lobby, where Martin Nadell has a cigar and newspaper stand, the thief handed Nadell a worthless Japanese occupation note and got 79 cents in American change after purchasing a package of cigarets. Secret Service officials labeled it larceny on a government reservation.

It's just simple figuring that will result in your saving money. Watch the dated price tags—merchandise that don't sell quickly at the first LOW price is automatically reduced 25%, 50%, 75% after 12, 18, and 24 selling days. Goods unsold at the end of 30 selling days given away to charitable institutions, but very little ever gets to that point. LOW prices like these $2.95 pajamas sell goods so quickly. COME ALL THE WAY UNDER COVER, AVOID ICY SIDEWALKS AND SLIPPERY STREETS, DIRECT SUBWAY ENTRANCES.

Cote's Widow Talks to Police On Murder

BROCKTON, Jan. 2—Accompanied by a girl friend, Mrs. Bertha S. Cote, attractive widow of Rene C. Cote, 35, slain garage manager, visited police headquarters this noon and conferred briefly with Chief Oscar A. Johnson.

The chief declined to reveal the reason for her visit. She arrived at the station shortly after state and local detectives completed a morning-long session at which all evidence in Cote's murder was reviewed. Cote was found strangled and bludgeoned in his third-floor living room in Harvard st., early Saturday.

Investigators disclosed they had established that glass found in the Cote living room did not come from the lens of a flashlight believed to have been the murder weapon. They said the glass was from the crystal of the victim's watch.

"We have not located the murder weapon," State Police Lt. John N. Sullivan said. "We are still trying to trace some $12,000 Cote received for auto transactions which never were completed."

Police reported they discovered a small amount of cash in a Braintree bank account listed under an assumed name and for which Cote had given his own name as reference.

Mrs. Cote has told police that on the crime night she was awakened by the sound of loud talking between her husband and a man whose voice she did not recognize. She said the intruder rushed passed her in the dark on his way out. He wore a dark overcoat, she reported, adding she was unale to describe him further.

Court Sympathy For Jealous Wife

A wife who finds her husband visiting another woman is not supposed to act as though she had ice water in her veins, Judge Elias Shamon commented today in municipal court after finding Mrs. Josephine Mangiaratti of Staniford st., West End, not guilty of assault and battery on Mrs. Mary Sacca of Prospect st., West End.

Mrs. Sacca testified she had been struck with an umbrella by the defendant during a sidewalk argument concerning Mrs. Mangiaratti's husband. The defendant wife testified she had found her husband in Mrs. Sacca's apartment and that later she met the woman on the street and warned her to stay away.

The court commented: "The inclination of a woman in such circumstances is to go out and wring the necks of her husband and the other woman."

Russian Papers Rap W. R. Hearst

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP)—Moscow newspapers displayed cartoons lampooning Bernard Baruch, William Randolph Hearst and "war mongers and Fascists."

Izvestia featured a drawing of the Kremlin clock at midnight with a banner before it saying: "For real democracy. For peace and security to all people." Huddled in a corner was a group of vultures tagged war mongers, slanderers, etc.

Red Star pictured a youthful 1947 landing on a scene and driving before him Hearst, Baruch, Generalissimo Franco, a Greek monarchist and the Turkish journalist Husein Yalchin.

A Trud cartoon showed the old year telling the new he was sick of a group of characters depicted as Baruch with atom bombs, Winston Churchill, Franco, Yalchin, Hearst and a Greek monarchist.

Communist Rule of Unions In New York Stores Charged

Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—That more than 14,000 employes in the world's largest department stores, in New York City, are organized in Communist-dominated unions is the charge made by Bernard Fielding in the January issue of Plain Talk, anti-totalitarian monthly published here.

After listing the five New York City locals of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes of America, the author of the article declares the vast majority of their members do not realize they are controlled by Communists.

"Local 1-S has more than 6000 members at Macy's," Fielding revealed in identifying the five leading Communist unions.

"Local 2 represents 2000 workers at Gimbels and Saks-34th st. stores.

"Local 3 is made up of 2500 members employed at Bloomingdale's.

"Local 5 has 900 members at Stern Brothers.

"Local 1250 covers more than 2500 employes at Hearn's, Oppenheim Collins, and Norton's in New York and Namm's and Loeser's in Brooklyn.

"These department store locals form a minority opposition bloc within the parent international union, which is not Communist-controlled. Actually there are some 35,000 department store employes who are members of non-Communist locals in cities elsewhere in the United States.

The Macy union, 1-S, according to Fielding, "is run in typical high-handed and undemocratic fashion. The Communist leaders come with a fixed agenda. They monopolize the speaking. Their organized booing and hissing squads loudly squelch and intimidate all attempts at opposition."

LaFollette Due for Post On UN Economic Council

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Former Sen. LaFollette (Prog.) of Wisconsin appeared today to be slated to succeed former Ambassador John G. Winant as American member of the United Nations economic and social council.

President Truman and State Sec. Byrnes were reported to have agreed on the appointment of La Follette. Responsible informants said Winant's resignation, submitted several days ago, would be accepted.

Dewey Begins 2d N. Y. Term

ALBANY, Jan. 2 (INS)—Gov. Dewey began his second term as chief executive of New York State today with an inaugural message fashioned for national and international consumption.

Republican presidential candidate in 1944, Dewey told an expectant inaugural audience that: "By each act and decision we are building either for a free society under a stable government where our people are protected by a Constitution, or we are building an increasingly regimented society with an increasing disregard for constitutional liberty."

Polar Expedition Hits Ice Barrier

ABOARD SS MOUNT OLYMPUS, Jan. 2 (INS)—The four ships of R. Adm. Richard H. Cruzen's command group were stuck for two hours in the ice pack today until the icebreaker Northwind smashed out a lane of open water.

Less than 12 hours after the entrance into the Great Ross ice barrier the task force ran into trouble.

Abruptly the ice became thick and solid, and the complete absence of wind and current made it virtually unmovable.

Veterans of previous Antarctic expeditions said the ice pack is the worst ever seen for thickness, solidity and unbroken expanse.

Invasion Air Chief's Secret Report Told

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Strategic bombing by British and American planes successfully paved the way for the invasion of Normandy despite "overlapping and complications" in the overall command, according to a hitherto secret report by the late Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory.

Submitted to Gen. Eisenhower in November, 1944, shortly before Leigh-Mallory's death in a plane crash, the 50,000-word report describes "ten and a half months of the most heavy and concentrated air war in history"—from Nov. 15, 1943, to Sept. 30, 1944.

"The Air Force had, by the day of the assault, completely disorganized the enemy's dense and complex network of rail lines of communication within France and Belgium," the report said.

"This having been accomplished by D-Day, it was soon possible to seal off the battle area through air action, and in this way the area was prepared for the employment of ground forces with the enemy at a critical disadvantage."

Leigh-Mallory complained, however, of Eisenhower's administrative setup under which, he said, the air commander-in-chief and the staff of the Allied Expeditionary Force were "required to work on two levels with two large Army staffs."

On a number of occasions, Leigh-Mallory said, "our own anti-aircraft guns, both naval and military, shot down friendly aircraft."

He also said the German air effort "was mediocre throughout."

'Murdered' Youth Proves He's Alive

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 2 (AP)—Carrying a newspaper clipping which said he might have been the victim of a slaying in Washington, D. C., Eugene Salata, 19, of Wheeling, walked into police headquarters last night to prove he was alive.

Police became concerned over Salata's safety when a 16-year-old Wheeling youth reportedly confessed he had killed a fellow magazine salesman believed to have been Salata. The "confession" is now believed a hoax.

'HARDY' FISHERMAN

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 2 (AP)—Hardy Gerald Fassett, 35, of Pemaquid, who spent a stormy New Year's day fishing the Atlantic from a 45-foot craft, sold a 2725-pound catch of hake, cusk and haddock today for $365.10, which waterfront veterans believed was top money for Portland. Fossett "hit the market," Fish men said, because he operated in a northeaster that kept most craft in port.

Britain Faces Palestine Crisis

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—A government source said today Britain was faced with the necessity of finding an immediate, final solution in Palestine or conducting a full-scale military operation to maintain her mandatory position in the Holy Land.

Foreign Sec. Ernest Bevin and Colonial Sec. Arthur Creech Jones were believed to be considering two possible solutions to their Palestine problem.

First was formulation of a partition plan to create independent Jewish and Arab states and allow Britain to exercise trusteeship control over certain sacred areas.

The second, was for Britain, failing successful partition, to seek an international solution through the United Nations.

Autopsies Reveal U. S. Pair In Algiers Died of Fumes

ALGIERS, Jan. 2 (AP)—A verdict of accidental death by coal gas asphyxiation was returned today after a post-mortem in the deaths of George Hayden of Asbury Park, N. J., and his fiancee, Mrs. Virginia Mull McAuley of Great Bend, Kan.

Hayden and Mrs. McCauley were found dead in his apartment Christmas Day. The United States consulate said the autopsy revealed only a slight trace of alcohol in Hayden's body, and none in that of his fiancee.

Hayden had worked for a linoleum company here.

Mrs. Marie Anne Castex, concierge of the apartment building, found the bodies on the floor of Hayden's bathroom.

She said there was no disorder in the third-story flat, nothing had been broken and there were no marks of violence. No blood stains were found, but some empty bottles of French liquor were on the floor, she said. Mrs. Castex said neighbors reported no noise.

Mrs. Castex, who manages the building at 12 Saint Saens blvd., a main street in Algiers, said Mrs. McCauley, formerly a WAC lieutenant colonel, arrived by plane Dec. 20 and that Hayden, formerly of the U. S. First Division, spoke of her as his wife. (They were planning an early marriage, relatives in New Jersey said.)

Sherrill Plans $3,000,000 Relief Fund

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Henry K. Sherrill today assumed his position as presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States and announced his immediate objective was the raising of $1,000,000 for world relief for Episcopal churches, as voted by the general convention last September.

Bishop Sherrill, who succeeded the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, said at a press conference the fund would be sought in a campaign from Feb. 15 to April 15 because "the money is desperately needed at the present time and we cannot wait until fall."

An additional $2,000,000 will be raised within the next three years.

Robert D. Jordan, director of promotionfor the national council of the Episcopal Church, who sat with the bishop, said the fund was to be used for food and clothing for destitute persons in Europe and Asia, temporary churches, books for theological seminaries and even to augment the salaries of clergymen in some countries where inflation has made serious inroads on the value of money.

Gandhi Starts Walking Tour of 26 Villages

CALCUTTA, Jan. 2 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi started today a village by village walking tour of the Noakhali district of East Bengal, carrying his doctrine of nonviolence into the Moslem-dominated area where communal disturbances erupted in October.

Despite his 77 years and frail body, the Hindu leader planned to visit 26 villages this month. His party carried a portable tratched hut for use where no suitable living quarters are provided.

Thieves Miss Club's New Year's Eve Cash

Thieves, believed using an Army type high explosive, early today blasted the door off a safe in a second floor office of the "Gay Nineties" nightclub on Haywood pl. and made off with $3400.

The safe crackers were apparently after more than $15,000 taken in at the club on New Year's Eve, but was placed in a bank night deposit vault by club officials to thwart just such a break.

Slippery Going

Little Traffic—Pedestrians had the right of way today outside the South Station (above) at 8:30 a. m. as newest snow and ice storm held down vehicular traffic. Normally at this time, influx of traffic from South Shore arteries inundates Dewey sq. Police issued appeals to motorists to refrain from all unnecessary driving today.

Removal

City workmen load snow outside the South Station today (above) and others remove the icy coating that glazed Park st. (at right) as the city went about the task of cleaning up after the latest storm which left three inches of snow and rain to make slippery going throughout the city. Weatherman said light freezing drizzle will continue through the night.

NO TIME FOR HYPOCRISY

OFFICERS OF the various promotional organizations which clog and clutter New England are up to their old New Year's tricks.

Their predictions follow an almost identical pattern. Everything is fine and lovely. Everybody's going to be prosperous. All's right with the world, particularly that part of the world which happens to be New England.

Obviously, there is method in the predictors' madness. In the phraseology of the familiar metaphor, THEY ARE FEATHERING THEIR OWN NESTS. They want to keep on living in the style to which they have become accustomed. They like their fancy salaries, pretty stenographers and plushy offices. They can't risk offending anybody, least of all a trust or monopoly which contributes to their support.

So the pompous publicists are patting themselves on the back until they are roundshouldered, and the whole New England population is supposed to join in the spree of optimistic superlatives and dwell forever after in a fool's paradise.

Fortunately, this is not the case. The average New Englander is a very practical and realistic person. He recognizes danger when he sees it. He isn't blinded by fakery and quackery.

CONSEQUENTLY, the average New Englander isn't surprised when the officers of the various promotional organizations say nothing about such major disasters as:

The near-bankruptcy of Maine, which is too poor to pay a $150 bonus to its war veterans.

The financial plight of New Hampshire, which has to engage in the alcoholic liquor business and participate in gambling to pay its State government expenses.

The imminence of confiscatory taxes in Massachusetts, where owning a home or operating a factory is more of a problem than a pleasure.

The exodus of New England capital to the South, West and Middlewest—TWO HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS of it in the past month to establish textile mills in the Tennessee Valley Authority area to compete with New England plants.

The visible death of the Port of Boston, which lacks New England industries to sustain it and which is being kept alive with the taxpayers' money.

The departure of thousands of ambitious young men and women from New England to find opportunities elsewhere—a situation which provenly great men like former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy never cease to deplore.

The truth is that the average New Englander remembers that officers of promotional organizations were similarly smug and silent years ago when the cotton industry moved out of Lawrence, Lowell and other cities, and he expects them to behave precisely as they are behaving.

THE ONLY THING that will save New England and enable it to grow and prosper is CHEAP AND ABUNDANT HYDROELECTRIC POWER.

If the scandalously neglected rivers of New England are developed, as rivers in the South and West have been developed, our existing industries will remain with us and new ones will come to us.

It was water power which built all our great manufacturing cities, as Senator Saltonstall recently observed in the Sunday Advertiser.

And it will be water power that will prevent those cities from degenerating into ghost towns.

Shackled to coal, which is always expensive and frequently not obtainable, we cannot compete with states and sections which manufacture electricity for almost nothing from properly harnessed rivers.

Let us be done with deceit and hypocrisy and FACE THAT FACT.

Rep. Peter J. Jordan of Revere, the Massachusetts Republican leader, is right when he says: "Kilowatts will pay our bills."

Much more right, certainly, than the promotional organization officers who seem to think they can achieve prosperity by sitting back in their soft chairs and voicing sweet and silly platitudes about covered bridges, Clipper ships, quaint summer resorts and places where George Washington slept.

To couple is a custom

Why should not I then love
Since love to all is free?

Hath such longing to be mated
It must couple or must die

YOU CANNOT be hypnotized if you refuse to cooperate with the hypnotist. That's what has been always claimed. Now Peter Casson, British hypnotist, has proved he can hypnotize people without their co-operation. Casson can hypnotize a man by merely staring at him. For example, he can stare at a fellow passenger on a bus and put him to sleep. Or stare at a judge during a trial and put the old boy to sleep. Incidentally, it has also been claimed a hypnotized person cannot be made to do anything while hypnotized that would be against his moral principles. This has also been proved a fallacy by a Danish hypnotist. Anyway, if you see a man staring at you on a bus or a street car probably the best thing to do is to get off at the next stop while you're conscious. He may be a hypnotist.

AS IT WAS: All the New Jersey horse tracks want racing dates in the summer. Yet New Jersey is the only Northern state that ever had a successful running horse meeting in the winter. That was held at Guttenberg, N. J. The spectators view the sport from a steam-heated grandstand. It was in referring to this track that the callers in the poolrooms cried out: "They're off at the Gut!" The most popular animal racing at Guttenberg was Blitzen, "The Iron Horse." I was never there, but I read about it in Sam Hildreth's autobiography. Incidentally, somebody borrowed my copy of that entertaining book. It is out of print. Anybody know where I can get another one?

PASSING BY: Waite Hoyt, erstwhile major league pitcher, now a radio sports commentator in Cincinnati. Waite should be added to the list of sports figures who made good in vaudeville. Ethel has been married only twice, so far.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Didn't you once mention the name of the first man to shave with a razor? A—No, sir. However, I did say that, according to Pliny, the Roman general, Scipio Africanus was the first man to shave with a razor every day. Couldn't say who was the first to use a razor. Barbers and razors are both mentioned in the Old Testament. If you don't know where they are mentioned, it would be a good question for your little boy to ask his Sunday school teacher to see if she is on her toes as to Biblical knowledge . . . Q—Didn't Tennyson speak very highly of the lengthy ladies like Lois De Fee? Didn't he, in fact, refer to a tall girl as "a daughter of the gods?" If so, kindly quote the passage so I can squelch a pint-sized female in our office who is constantly quoting from the poem "In Praise of Little Women." A—In "Dream of Fair Women" Tennyson wrote:

Lois De Fee

At length I saw a lady within call,
Stiller than chisell'd marble, standing there;
A daughter of the gods, divinely tall,
And most divinely fair.

AULD LANG SYNE NOTE: The player of the part of Sunshine Sammy in the old Our Gang film comedies is now the Rev. M. F. Holmes, Baptist minister . . . Am asked if I know Irish songs titled "Stand Up, McCarthy" and "I Owe Ten Dollars to O'Grady." Am not familiar with either ditty . . . Do you play cards or any other game regularly with your wife? Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hopkins of Hythe, England, play cribbage together. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary playing their twenty thousandth game of cribbage.

PLEASE NOTE — Airlines everywhere seem to be having their troubles these days. Recently an international air show was held in Paris. It is reported some of the top men in the British aircraft industry, to assure their arrival at the event on time, passed up traveling by plane and went to Paris by boat and train.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—The spectacle of Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, running to Harry Lundeberg, the incarnation of Popeye the Sailor, for protection from the Communists, is one that no artist can paint, however drunk.

Westbrook Pegler

Curran is a fellow who has run with the Communists, bunked with them, and employed their wiles and oppressive harassments, and, in one notorious case, threw an American sailor off an Army transport because he had offered a resolution condemning Communism and Nazi-Fascism alike.

Lundeberg, with a smaller union, has hated the Communists with a sensuous joy, and fought and derided and frustrated them, and Curran with them, for years.

While Curran and his Communist friends were promoting "social services" for his subjects afloat and ashore and beaching American sailors for as long as 99 years for impoliteness to illiterate and gamey savages from the Caribbean waterfront slums, Popeye ridiculed him as a not excessively manly South street mission stiff and bade his own jolly tars to keep out of the subsidized coffee and salad parties, buy their own drinks with their own money, pick their own girls and have no truck with patronizing ladies assigned to dance with "the boys" for their morale.

POPEYE SAID a sailor was a sailor, not a man with a message or a high purpose to create a bright new world. His strict policy as a professional unioneer was to get as much pay as the traffic would stand, and the best possible food, quarters and conditions, and to hell with the high-suburban slummers and their touch-me-not sympathy with poor Jack.

Popeye fought Harry Bridges despite the Supreme Court's decision that Bridges was not quite a Communist, and his union publications, with a humor as rough as pig iron, sometimes drew beads of gore through a hide as thick as Senator Joe Guffey's.

Curran, too, had a union publication, called the Pilot, so largely an organ of personal exaltation that it was not unusual to find six photographs of Joe, usually posed in beneficent postures, in one issue.

But sabotage seems to have bared its green and slimy fangs on an occasion when Mrs. Curran had a baby and the Pilot reported that Joe had been brought to bed of the strain, a hell of a plight for a seafaring man.

Again, intentionally or not, and perhaps through miscalculation, the Pilot, on another occasion, notified the subjects that Joe's own column of lightsome banter and angry politics would be suspended during the period of his vacation, which coincided with his only trip to sea during the war.

CURRAN PUT himself into association with the Roosevelts, him and her, through the union's publicity. Throughout this long time, in New Deal union politics, he personified the seafaring union civilian to the public, while Lundeberg, less adroit but more muscular and rough, was little known outside the circle of the fight and the immediate spectators.

Lundeberg didn't try to enforce manners and "democracy" on the forecastle. If white and negro fought and fell to calling names, he let them fight as men.

During these years Curran wrote me that in his belief the war had been imperialistic until Hitler attacked Stalin, whereat it became a people's war.

This was the Communist line and it conformed to the test, by which Elmer Davis, of the Office of War Information, decided who were Communists and who were not.

On this basis and on other evidence I made my own decision as to Curran's politics and so I was puzzled to read, within the last year, that Curran and the Communists in the N. M. U. had fallen out and that they now were out to get him.

Curran found himself drawn into a committee of unity for the maritime trades, found his own large union outvoted by a bunch of smaller unions, and rebelled.

In unity, he was losing his identity. And so then he ran to Lundeberg for help and comfort.

THIS, I BELIEVE, means that Lundeberg will be head man in the new group and Curran a subordinate, perhaps with some grant or honor for his vanity and face.

Lundeberg never ran to Joe for amnesty or help and in Popeye's own words he still can bellow, "I Yam Wot I Yam!" and the slummers in their pretty dresses, with their penthouse refinement and their condescending vulgarity, be damned!

Hollywood Today

By Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2—It's a very happy New Year for both Gene Autry and Columbia. Gene has just signed a two-year contract to distribute four pictures a year through Columbia.

This means he leaves Republic, the studio he battled in court for his freedom. It also means that Harry Cohn gets the top Western money maker.

Gene Autry

If you ever had any thought that Gene is not popular, all you have to do is print something not 100 per cent complimentary and letters start pouring in from all over the country from boys who protest any criticism of their idol.

Columbia gets a percentage of all Autry's pictures and the contract starts either the first of May, or the first of October, depending when he finishes his last Republic Western.

This new affiliation will be announced at a cocktail party. If I have spoiled Gene's surprise I am sorry.

ANN MILLER, who recently separated from Reese Lewellyn Milner, scion of the Lewellyn Iron Works, is resuming her movie career. She'll star in "Petty Girl" for Columbia, and that's interesting because she gave up her Columbia contract at his request when she married Milner.

The Petty girl is the erstwhile sweetheart of Esquire Magazine and the one responsible for getting it banned in the mails. None of this, of course, will seep into the movie, which will be very clean. Al Blumenthal of the department store family will produce Ann's return movie.

FAR BE IT from me to say that Laraine Day's much-publicised romance with Leo Durocher has any bearing on the changeroo in her next movie role—but changerooed it is!

Laraine, who has always played goody good girls on the screen, bursts forth as a defiant, half caste hell raisin' beauty in "Tycoon," which is the first on her new five-year deal with R-K-O.

John Wayne is the man in her movie life, a story set in the aristocratic circles of South America. And, just by way of keeping it even more colorful, it will be in Technicolor, with Dick Wallace directing.

ON JANUARY 10, my dear friends, Lottie and Adolph Zukor celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, and Adolph's 74th birthday.

On that happy day, their son, Eugene Zukor, and their daughter, Mildred Zukor Loew, Eugene's wife and children, and Mildred's children and grandchildren will all be there—three generations. As well as Jesse Lasky, Zukor's former partner.

Adolph is really a pioneer. He founded the present Paramount company, which was then called "The Famous Players." He made the first really good pictures and did much to give motion pictures dignity. He brought Ernst Lubitsch to this country, made stars of Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Thomas Meighan and Marlene Dietrich.

To him and to Lottie, this column sends love and congratulations.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Several friends of the late Lupe Velez have checked up on the disposition of the funds of her estate to see that they were being spent according to Lupe's stipulation.

Certainly her brother, Emigdio, is living up to the terms of the will which would please poor little Lupe very much.

The brother has followed her requests to the letter. That is, he has bought a nice home in Mexico City for his four children and has put the remainder of the money in trust for their education.

SYDNEY GREENSTREET is finally set, sealed and delivered for the role of Evan Evans in Clark Gable's "The Hucksters," and believe you me, M-G-M had to pay a plenty for Sydney.

I'm told he gets $20,000 a week or some such fantastic sum, and all I hope for Sydney this New Year is that the picture will go on and on. No, I can't do that, either, because I have many friends at M-G-M.

But, anyway, he plays the character which is said to be patterned after a famous sponsor of a radio show who has passed on.

I AM VERY HAPPY that Peter Rathvon, head of R-K-O, was able to persuade Dore Schary to accept his offer to take over the production reins of R-K-O. Remember I told you exclusively that Mr. Rathvon was negotiating with Schary who was a Selznick producer.

I think it's a fine thing for R-K-O. Schary knows the business, he is a good producer and he has had wide experience. Together, Rathvon and Schary will do big things.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Stanley Barbee, Coca-Cola king, and Yvonne Rosson, ex-wife of Hal Rosson, will be married January 9.

Joyce Coleman, former model, and Michael Harvey, Paramount actor, are starting the New Year alone—they are divorcing.

The beautiful diamond pin Hazel Brooks Gibbons wore to the New Year's parties was designed by her husband, Cedric Gibbons and executed by Harry Winston, the famous jeweler who cut the Hope diamond.

The Tex Feldmans gave one of the gayest of the holiday parties. Guests came all done up in their best clothes and many went on to the "Duel in the Sun" premiere.

Little Jeanne Crain, wearing braces on her teeth during the time she is awaiting motherhood, was so happy and flattered when Cary Grant told her she was his favorite actress since he saw her in "Margie."

Martha O'Driscoll, with many feathers on her hat, came with Greg Bautzer. Joan Crawford—please don't read.

Blonde Peggy Knudsen, an eyefull, was escorted by Phil Reed, who does get around since he and Barbara Hutton parted company.

Kitty and Mervyn Leroy, Judge J. F. T. O'Connor, Kay Williams Spreckles, in a gorgeous white-beaded decollette gown, and many others accepted Tex's generous hospitality.

David Selznick gave a beeg party at the Mocambo for his pets after his premiere. Some of the $2,000,000 spent on publicity went into sweaters for the cigaret girls and for the orchestra, carrying the words "Duel in the Sun."

Jummy Beck, who left Hollywood for New York, is very much in the social swim, he and his pretty Mary. They gave a party honoring the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and all of the many titled personages visiting in New York at the moment were there.

Jeanne Crain

Jimmy is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's favorite pianist, and at a party she gave, he obliged with a piano solo.

Arthur Murray will be best man at the wedding of Arthur Madsen, manager of his Washington studio. Madsen is marrying Lois Mann, former Warner starlet.

That's all today.

Boston After Dark

A VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL! . . . New Year's Hunch: Either the Braves have purchased Ron Northey of the Phillies, or they have a trade on the griddle whereby the long-ball hitting outfielder with the "next best arm to Slaughter's" will come to Braves Field next summer . . . The class of customer known as jellybean was much in evidence in the night clubs as 1947 took over the calendar . . . Jellybeans are of two sorts, i. e.: Callow youths or solid citizens who are unused to ringsiding in the glitter joints . . . Neither variety puts its money into circulation with great freedom or elan.

PERHAPS THE MOST heartwarming chapter of Jan. 1 was the New Year's dinner at the Fox and Hounds Club for 150 children—ages 3 to 12—from the Home For Catholic Children . . . Archbishop Cushing dined with his young charges and Eddie Davis was host to the kids . . . Wilson Lewis' orchestra and Len Russ' rumba unit played . . . A feature of the affair was the familiarity shown by the children with many of the songs played by the bands.

THEIR YOUNG VOICES joined in the chorus of the specially-chosen numbers as if the occasion was a community singfest . . . Manager Davis of the Fox and Hounds was very much opposed to having any publicity accrue from the fact that he was able to entertain his happy young guests . . . When Archbishop Cushing asked the children to say a daily prayer for their host, the sophisticated Mr. Davis came very close to choking up.

SUCH A VERY GOOD TIME "was had by all," however, and as the New Year's Day dinner at the Fox and Hounds for these youngsters is to be an annual event, there seems no valid reason for failing to report a sentimental break in the flinty surface of the so-called Rialto . . . Mr. Davis will have to accept these few lines of appreciation for his thoughtfulness in the security of his own knowledge that he pleaded for no publicity.

JUDY POWELL, the clever young song stylist, Buddy Raymond, who was Emcee and comedian-in-chief of the Milt Britton band, and who sings and plays the guitar and piano, and Helen Porter, a new vocalist, will help Rocky Palladino inaugurate a 1947 policy of entertainment and dancing, to Sonny Carter's music, in the upstairs area of the Albany st. nightclub, the Villa Nova, Sunday night . . .

The main floor of the Villa Nova has been reconverted to its original function as the place to dine, and—as originally—without the interjection of music or entertainment.

RECOMMENDED: The New York disc jockey who closed his program, Starlight Serenade, last night by calling the program, as he signed off, "The Scratchy Serenade" . . . Such an uncommon admission that one of the much-played recordings had scratched its way through nearly all the grooves on the platter was startling, to put it mildly . . . The Champagnes, and the enthusiasm they maintain for their profession of ballroom dance-teaching, as they put on their nightly exhibition at the Plaza's Oval Room . . . Bill Mercer's band at the Music Box—and the Music Box food . . . Young Peter Leong's suavity as maitre d' of Ruby Foo's Den . . . Peter's Back Bay accent, incidentally, is authentic . . . A native of Boston, he served his apprenticeship in the first uptown Chinese restaurant (which his father operated), near the Fens . . . Ranny Weeks, his orchestra, the atmosphere, the decor, the service—almost everything—at the Somerset . . . Dinty Moore's—for lunch or dinner . . . The food at the Town House . . . The Red Coach Grill—any of them . . . Steuben's, which the modest and hard-working Shneider brothers, Max and Joe, have made into a Boston institution . . . Sally Keith's incredible tassle-dance, the only dance evolution of its kind in the world, at the Crawford House . . . Venuti's food, and the montecotti dish as a fillip for jaded appetites . . . Alan Gale's entertaining comedy at the Bradford Roof . . . For the tried and true and unfailing appeal of entertainment as it was in grandfather's (my grandfather's) day at the Gay Nineties with its set of wonderful oldtimers who have lost neither their dignity nor their self-respect . . . "Born Yesterday" at the Wilbur . . . Tony Bruno's band—back on the bandstand where it belongs—at the Latin Quarter . . . Al Taxier—as a host for some cafe which needs a good man as boss and, preferably, as owner of the jernt . . . Jack McCarthy's effort to accoutre Bostonians in fine fashion without sending them to the cleaner's at the same time . . . Jack's new haberdashery in Boylston st. is now a fixture, and after only seven weeks of operation.

BOSTON'S TRAFFIC system offers a feature whereby poor mortals can become bemused to the point of believing themselves (a) color-blind; (b) crazy . . . In no other city in the world does a traffic signal show red and green at the same time, and keep repeating . . . (To enjoy this strange thrill, travel along Massachusetts ave. from Beacon st. to Boylston almost any night.)

"It seems mighty funny that it suddenly costs $1.80 for your little brother to go to the movies!"

Washington Scene

By George Dixon

Copyright 1946, King Features Syndicate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—I got back from Venezuela to find that the hottest topic of conversation, outside of the impending return of Congress, was the Army-Notre Dame football schism.

It was pleasant and reassuring to see that this country could still get worked up over a football schedule after a sojourn in a land where the principal subject of debate seems to be: "Who will shoot the president—your team or mine?"

As a confirmed rah-rah boy who loves to attend big spectacles where the tickets are hard to get—a matter in which I am by no means peculiar—I was quite put out by the announced severance of relations. I felt definitely bereft over the thought that I would have to forego the pleasure of being bruised, buffeted and trampled half to death in return for the privilege of studying the necks of the customers in front of me.

I could envision the sports writers holding forth in furious pontification, asking questions such as: "What has sport come to in this country?" And the subway alumni weeping, wailing and gnashing teeth and refusing to be comforted.

In looking at it dispassionately, however, it seems to be the sensible thing to do. There is no question—as the heads of both schools agreed—that the annual game had grown to such proportions that it was getting out of control.

Often it seemed as if it was being played principally for the benefit of the scalpers and the gamblers. Ask any soldier who tried to get seats what his war record would accomplish for him as against an underworld big shot who had black market cash to lay on the line.

But that isn't the big issue as I see it. The real issue seems to apply to Army alone.

West Point is not just another university. It is a comparatively small school devoted to a special purpose—the training of men to protect our lives and liberty.

With too great emphasis on football there is a tendency to lose sight of this special purpose. The football star, who may later be lured away to professional gridding, is apt to be encouraged at the expense of the budding military genius who may some day be called upon to lead us in a desperate struggle for existence.

LET ME cite an instance: In the years 1928-30 West Point had a great team, starring the famous Red Cagle. You heard more about Cagle in those days than about the school itself.

Cagle never became a particle of use to our armed forces. But, while he was being feted and worshipped, West Point had an obscure scholar who was seriously trying to learn his business. He was practically ignored. But today he is Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad, director of Army plans and operations, one of the most important jobs in our whole military setup.

The point I am trying to make is that Norstad, seeing all the kudos going to the football stars, might well have been prompted to throw up his military career in disgust.

It's happened to more serious West Pointers than you can imagine.

MAYBE, when the world is a quieter place in which to live, it will be okay for Army to go in big and heavy for football again. But these are unusual and dangerous times.

I WOULD LIKE to make New Year's resolutions anent the following parties:

Brig. Gen. Joseph F. Battley—Never to call him a brass hat unless I am wearing chain mail.

Arthur (Dutch) Bergman—Never to ask him about a complicated football play unless I have all night.

Chicago Frank Harmon: Never to make any cracks against Mayor Ed Kelly in his hearing.

Harry Wismer: Never to take a train ride with him. I still suspect him of derailing that one the other day just for the publicity.

Joe E. Lewis: Never to heckle him while performing so he can retort: "That's the first pair of shoes I ever saw with three heels."

Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle: Never to ask him how the Democrats made out at the last election.

Bradford

cannot bear any further burden of taxation."

As a first step in the solution of the problem, the new governor proposed the Legislature create an emergency advisory commission on State and municipal finances.

He urged appropriation of $20,000 for the temporary five-man commission, which would review tax structures of cities and towns and the Commonwealth and to prepare recommendations regarding other sources of revenue. He said the commission should report its findings not later than March 15.

Bradford also recommended the ending of the governor's wartime emergency powers immediately.

"If it becomes apparent that special controls are needed," he said, "as for instance, if the federal government should abandon all control over rents, our proper course is to have specific legislation ready to meet such an emergency.

"I recommend that such legislation be prepared in advance of the need."

Bradford also announced that he had appointed a nine-man commission to study industrial relations in Massachusetts "before seeking to legislate further penalties or further privileges" for labor or management.

Representing labor on the commission are Anthony J. DeAndrade, Boston; Jack Hurvich, Brookline, and Harold D. Ulrich, Melrose.

Management representatives are James Wall, North Adams; Seabury Stanton, South Dartmouth, and Clarence G. McDavitt, Newton.

Representing the public are Douglas V. Brown, M. I. T.; Rev. Thomas E. Shortell, S. J., Holy Cross, and Sumner Slichter, Harvard, the latter being designated as chairman.

The new Governor also recommended termination of the Metropolitan District Water Supply Commission and transfer of its functions to the Metropolitan District Commission.

He proposed merging the emergency public works commission into a Massachusetts Building Commission for construction of $75,000,000 worth of institutional buildings.

Distinguished guests at the ceremonies included three former governors, Channing Cox, Joseph B. Ely and James M. Curley, now mayor of Boston. Another former governor, David I. Walsh, failed to appear at the ceremonies for the first time in years.

More than 7000 persons filled the State House corridors but only about 200 were able to crowd into the gallery seats of the House chamber.

Seated on the floor of the House in addition to members of the Legislature were the former governors, justices of the Supreme and Superior courts and more than a score of Massachusetts mayors.

Only unhappy note for the incoming governor was the fact that his daughter, Rebecca, 19, was ill with pneumonia at Wyman House, Cambridge Hospital, and was unable to attend. She listened to a radio broadcast of the ceremony from her hospital bed.

But the rest of the family attended and sat in the House gallery. In addition to Mrs. Bradford and their three other children, Ann, Robert H., and Charles, the governor's mother and Mrs. Edward C. Brown, Mrs. Bradford's mother, as well as the governor's brothers, Charles and Edward, also were present.

Ceremonies began with the opening prayer after which Secretary of State Cook read the official proclamation of the Nov. 5 election results.

Gov. Bradford completed his address in 50 minutes and, aat the conclusion of the ceremonies, received well-wishers in the historic Hall of Flags. Later he was host at a luncheon in the executive offices.

The inaugural ball will be held tonight in the First Corps Cadet Armory.

Bradford, as a Republican, will be strongly supported in both legislative houses and in the council. The G. O. P. has a majority of 144 to 96 in the House, and predominates in the Senate 24 to 16. Only one member of the Executive Council is a Democrat.

With Nicholson presiding in the Senate, the Republicans are due to get a new floor leader in Sen. Charles W. Innes of the Back Bay. The Democratic floor leader is Sen. Chester A. Dolan, Jr., of Jamaica Plain.

In the House, the Republicans returned to the Speaker's rostrum Frederick Willis of Saugus. He appointed Rep. John H. Valentine of Chelmsford to another term as floor leader and Rep. Peter J. Jordan of Revere as party whip. Minority floor leader is Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Cambridge.

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP)—Minister of Public Health G. Miterev said in newspaper article today that Russia's birth rate was double the rate during war years and was steadily rising. He added that the country's mortality rate declined sharply in 1946.

Council OK's 8 Final Tobin Appointments

The outgoing governor's council held its final meeting at 11 a. m. today and confirmed the last eight appointments submitted by retiring Gov. Tobin.

On strict party lines, the council voted 5 to 4 to confirm the appointment of Atty. James M. Langan, of Jamaica Plain, as special justice of the Middleboro-Wareham district court. The Plymouth County Bar Ass'n. had opposed it, contending the post should go to a local man.

The council also approved appointments for two of its outgoing members. Robert V. O'Sullivan, of Lawrence, became a trustee of the Eastern Mass. Street Railway and James J. Marshall, of Worcester, was made a member of the General Insurance Guaranty Fund.

Others approved included Joseph A. Dunn, East Boston, member of the state advisory council; Leo A. Gosselin, Bellingham, justice of the peace, and Frank Cebula, Ware, member of the board of registration in embalming.

At the conclusion of the session Gov. Tobin went through the traditional ceremony of handing over to his successor the key to the council chamber, the Benjamin Butler Bible and the Indian arrowheads which are handed down from Governor to Governor.

"It is a pleasure to present you with this key to the council chamber," Tobin said. "As far as I know, there is no lock which it will open."

"In the two years I have been here," Bradford replied, "there was never any occasion when it was necessary to lock the council chamber. I hope this will continue."

Fr. Delaney's Will Benefits Charities

The will of Rt. Rev. Michael F. Delaney, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Natick, and at the time of his death the oldest active priest in America, was filed for probate in Middlesex court today.

Bequests of $2000 each are to go to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the Negro and Indians Missions, and $1000 was left to Archbishop Cushing in trust for the exclusive use of St. Patrick's parochial school.

No estimate was placed on the value of the estate and no bond was filed by the executor, Rev. Thomas J. Ford.

Curbs on Mail To Germany Eased

Business communications seeking facts or exchange of information may be sent to Germany, effective at once, provided they weigh no more than one ounce, Postmaster Patrick J. Connelly announced today. Among legal documents approved for mailing are birth, death and marriage certificates and wills.

Still prohibited are business contracts, checks, drafts, securities and currency.

DEBT CLOUD WITH SILVER LINING

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Britain issued her first "de-silvered" coins today.

Shilling (20-cent) pieces made of cupro-nickel were released by the bank of England to conserve what is needed to pay Britain's debt to the United States of 327,000,000 ounces of silver.

Silver now in circulation—all of which will be recalled and melted down—is worth $520,000,0000.

Communist Party, Unions Face Election Charges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (INS)—The Justice Department today considered action against the American Communist party, 60 labor unions and 11 companies and corporations charged by a congressional committee with violating the Corrupt Practices Act.

Robert Barker, chief investigator for a special House committee investigating campaign expenditures, said the organizations had contributed to Americans United for World Government, Inc.

He said the committee held that Americans United is a political organization and that the War Labor Disputes act bars contributions to such groups by labor unions and corporations.

The committee also reported to the attorney general the failure of the Communist party to file a campaign report under the Federal Corrupt Practices act.

Under the war labor disputes act, labor unions and organizations which make political contributions during a general election are subject to a $5000 fine upon conviction. Each officer and director who consented to the contribution is liable upon conviction to a maximum penalty of $1000 and one-year imprisonment

Barker said officials of the Communist party, failing to file a campaign report, were liable upon conviction to a maximum penalty of $10,000 and two years' imprisonment.

In Cliquot, Frank Roake, 60, of Main st., Millis, escaped with lacerations when struck by a West Medway-Needham Junction train while walking the New Haven railroad tracks. He was taken to Framingham Community Hospital.

Forty-miles-an-hour northeast gales hampered offshire shipping and the winds increased as the day progressed. Velocities up to 45 miles were forecast for off the Maine coast before the winds abate late tonight, the weather bureau warned.

Lines of stalled cars were seen on major highways, particularly on steep grades with sharp curves. Emergency crews were dispatched to the most dangerous points, and others were sent out as traffic jams developed.

The mechanized army tackling the storm was one of the largest on record. The State assigned 600 plows and sanding machines along with 1200 men. The Boston Elevated had 40 vehicles at work and 200 men.

Boston streets were tackled in the pre-dawn hours by 23 city and 230 contract plows, with 700 men. Some 500 trucks were used to haul away the snow. Plans called for adding to this force 1500 more men and 200 small plows.

Other communities in Greater Boston had between 20 and 50 vehicles at work during the night, and hundreds were hired in every city and town.

Anti U. S. Feeling Grows in China

NANKING, Jan. 2 (AP)—One thousand Chinese students today carried their demands for ouster of American servicemen from China to the U. S. Embassy and Chiang Kaishek's headquarters.

They said they would march to the home of Gen. Marshall, U. S. peace envoy to China, and to the Chinese Foreign Office tomorrow.

Chanting "Americans go home!" they ignored a ministry of education order banning such parades. The petitions demanded withdrawal of U. S. troops from China, and requested that the UN Security Council order U. S. troops moved, and that full details of the alleged rape of a Peiping girl by two U. S. Marines be published.

In Peiping, Marine officials are preparing to put the attack charges before a court-martial. They said one leatherneck denies any relations with the girl, and the other insisted she was a professional prostitute.

Report Spanish Parties Sign Caretaker Pact

LONDON, Jan. 2 (INS)—A Madrid dispatch to the London Times reported today that representatives of all Spanish parties, with the exception of Carlists and Communists, signed a pact to form a caretaker government.

News of this action was said to have caused excitement, especially in Barcelona, because it is realized the alternative to the present dictatorship must be originated within Spain itself.

The request was filed by Atty. William F. Graham, Beacon st Boston, on behalf of the following:

Richard R. Caples and Frank J. Caples, Greylock rd., Brighton; Irwin Grange, Mt. Hood rd., Brighton; Norman S. Weinberg, Colbourne rd., Brighton; James C. O'Brien, Union st., Cambridge, Joseph D. Minsky and George Bennett, Commonwealth ave., Brighton; Thomas J. O'Brien, Broadway, Cambridge; Frederick L. Murray, Melvin ave., Brighton.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

THERE'S GOOD NEWS TODAY . . . for sensational beauty news breaks tomorrow! For the first time in four years . . . you can buy some famed cosmetics . . . bearing one of the greatest names in the beauty world . . . at a 20 per cent discount. Yes! That's the offer . . . but it is only for ONE WEEK . . . from Jan. 3 through Jan. 11.

Cosmetic sales were conspicuous by their absence during the war years. Now with the advent of the new year . . . comes this truly remarkable offer of prestige cosmetics . . . many, many of which have been discussed at great length in our columns.

Fortuitously offered at a time when all of us must, of necessity, begin to watch our pennies . . . what with Christmas depleting the money stock and the instability of values . . . this 20 per cent saving sale is bountiful beauty news.

For instance, one cream for which we have expressed time and time again great personal fondness and splendid praise . . . because of its precious ingredient that brings younger skin beauty to every face that feasts on it . . . that, too, is included in this sale. A product that's compounded from a formula featuring an element that helps to return dewy loveliness to the skin . . . that has extraordinary potency in rebuilding scarred and marred tissue . . . it is a prerequisite for any skin that needs stimulation and increased circulation. And what skin doesn't?

EYE CREAM, TOO

In addition, it has a strong tendency to retard the aging look of an aging skin . . . and substitute for a dull, listless complexion a smooth and soft expanse of younger-looking face. But this is only one of the fine preparations in this fine line.

The eye cream bearing this creator's name is another staunch item of intrinsic worth with its inimitable way of keeping the delicate area around the eyes firm and fine and unlined. That, too, is part of the sale.

In fact, all her famed cosmetics may be purchased at a 20 per cent discount. The beautiful brass lipsticks and the luxurious bath preparations . . . the oily blend for dry skin . . . the fine-milled face powder . . . everything. And tomorrow is the day!

For the name of the line featuring this marvelous 20 per cent discount sale, Jan. 3 through Jan. 11, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"WALKING OUT" . . . that's the name given to this trim little Dobbs toque . . . with its turn-back cuffed brim and over-sized crown . . . a dandy drape for any head. And a dandy dress-up for any face is the array of wonderful cosmetics . . . bearing a famous beauty name . . . offered for one week only, starting tomorrow, at a 20 per cent discount . . . the first such offer in four years.

Apple a La Mode '47 Style

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

NO DESSERT has had more universal popularity than apple pie a la mode—other than just ice cream. It goes without saying that ice cream is still America's No. 1 favorite.

The sweet, tart flavor of apples is a perfect blend with creamy smooth ice cream. However, that same delicious, satisfying flavor combination may be had by filling the centers and topping baked apples with ice cream. This new version is much simpler to prepare and easier to serve, too.

BUTTERSCOTCH APPLE A LA MODE

Choose 6 uniform cooking apples, wash and core. Peel the apples 1-3 of the way down from the top. Place the apples in a baking dish and prepare a syrup of 1 cup of brown sugar and 1 cup of water. Add 2 tablespoons of butter and pour over apples. Bake in a moderate oven (35 deg. F.) until tender, basting them with syrup occasionally.

Corn syrup or honey may be used as part, or all, of the sugar if preferred. However, decrease the amount of water slightly if either is used.

Serve the apples slightly warm or just cool, filling the centers and topping them with vanilla ice cream. One quart of ice cream will serve six. Any extra sauce left on the apples may be served over the top.

APPLE PIE

Pastry
1 cup sugar
6 cups pared, sliced tart apples (5 or 6 apples)
1 tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. butter

Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Mix 1 tablespoon sugar with flour and sprinkle over pastry. Mix remaining sugar and salt. Fill shell with alternate layers of apples and sugar mixture. Dot with butter and cover with pastry. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 30 to 40 minutes, until apples are soft. Makes 9-inch pie. Note: Mix 1 teaspoon cinnamon or ½ teaspoon nutmeg with sugar and salt, if desired. Or add 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg and 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

STANDARD PASTRY

2½ cups sifted flour
1 tsp. salt
¾ cup cold shortening
5 tbsp. cold water (about)

Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in half of the shortening with two knives or a pastry blender until mixture looks like cornmeal. Cut in remaining shortening until particles are the size of a pea. At one side of the bowl add 1 tablespoon cold water and stir in as much of the flour mixture as the water will take up. Continue adding water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until you have 4 or 5 balls of dough and some dry mixture left in the bowl. Press all together lightly with fingers, and if all the dry flour is not taken up, add a little more water. Remember, the less the dough is handled the flakier the pastry. Chill and roll. Makes one 2-crust 9-inch pie.

PASTRY MIX

8 cups (2 lbs.) sifted flour
1 tbsp. salt
2¼ cups cold shortening

Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or a pastry blender, a little at a time, until mixture looks like cornmeal. Store in covered container in refrigerator for future use. To make 1 pastry shell, use 1¼ cups pastry mix and about 3 tablespoons water. To make one 2-crust pie or 12 tart shells, use 2¼ cups pastry mix and about 5 tablespoons water. Makes three 2-crust 9-inch pies, 6 pastry shells or 3 dozen tart shells.

Seems He's Losing Interest

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: After going with a boy for three weeks, he told me he loved me. I didn't believe him, and I told him so.

Now, about six weeks later, I find I do love him and he claims he really loves me. He said that at first he only went out with me to forget a girl he liked very much and that when he told me he loved me he didn't mean it. But now he is sure, and he wants me to believe him.

I don't see him as much as I used to, but when I do he tells me he still feels the same. It seems to me, though, that this past week he has been losing interest. How can I be sure he does love me?

VETERAN'S SWEETHEART.

I think you should have stayed with your first answer to this boy and gone right on not believing him when he said he loved you.

Buy Better and Look Better

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IT ISN'T too late to add a few clothes resolutions to those you made on Jan. 1 if you haven't already made them. The first ought to be to go over your mistakes and sins of dress during 1946, and resolve to eliminate them if it's humanly possible in 1947.

No matter how little you can afford to spend on dress, another fine resolve is to avoid the cheap and shoddy in your clothes. I mean quality, which isn't always in the most expensive things. However, it's far better to buy less and buy better. The most dangerous kind of thing is cheap glitter. It never looks good. It never adds to your charm of appearance. Resolve to study the colors you wear, too. Make them better colors and more becoming to you, personally.

Jerome Kern's Lovely Songs Highlight Loew's Musical

Jerome Kern's lovely songs make attendance at Loew's State and Orpheum a worth-while affair, and generally speaking "Till the Clouds Roll By" will be regarded by most as good entertainment. It fails as do most autobiographical musicals in the matter of story, but it does have a glittering array of stars and such well-remembered songs as "They'll Never Believe Me," "Who?," "Look for the Silver Lining" and the beautiful "Show Boat" numbers.

The picture purports to tell the story of Kern's life, but it is a highly romanticized and pretty tedious script, with pedestrian dialogue and unimaginative situation. Van Heflin gives the best performance in a straight role as Kern's great friend and arranger; he lent credibility and dignity to the film, but I never believed that Robert Walker was Jerome Kern, although he is a very charming young man.

The film opens with scenes and songs from "Show Boat," most effectively staged. Tony Martin and Kathryn Grayson sang "Make Believe" charmingly, but Lena Horne only made us feel a pang for the untimely passing of the unforgettable Helen Morgan.

It is, we grant, difficult for stars of today to impersonate those of yesterday to the satisfaction of the oldsters, whose memories always lend enchantment to the stage idols of their youth. Therefore Judy Garland deserves especial praise for her portrayal of the late Marilyn Miller. She did not quite catch the elfin grace of the petite star of the 1920's, but she did catch the sweet wistfulness, and the essential quality which made Miss Miller so beloved.

The film has June Allyson, Dinah Shore, and even Frank Sinatra; it has Van Johnson in a bit part, Virginia O'Brien in a dead-pan song, Lucile Bremer, Cyd Charisse and just about everyone MGM could think of. The production, we might add, is in better taste throughout than are most star-studded musicals. M. X. S.

'My Darling Clementine,' One of Best Western Films

Darryl Zanuck has rung the bell again with "My Darling Clementine," a wonderful western brilliantly directed by John Ford, who has done as fine a job with this film as he did with "Stagecoach."

It is a rip-snorting, fiercely exciting picture of Tombstone, Arizona, in the 1880's bearing the flavor and pulse of the desert pioneers of that era. Its authenticity is partly, do doubt, attributable to the fact that this town was not built on a Hollywood movie lot, but was actually reconstructed out on the desert, 189 miles out of Flagstaff, Arizona.

Henry Fonda has his best screen role, as Earp Wyatt, who becomes the town's first marshal in order to avenge the death of his young brother at the hands of rustlers, and his performance is a gem. Victor Mature, to our pleased surprise, proves that he is an able actor as well as a beautiful hunk of man, in the role of "Doc" Holliday, the consumptive ex-surgeon, gambler and tough guy.

Walter Brennan, to nobody's surprise, comes up with another great characterization as the unregenerate head of the notorious Clanton gang, and Linda Darnell and Cathy Downs are excellent as, respectively, a cabaret girl and a lady.

Script writers Samuel G. Engel and Winston Miller deserve special credit for their adaptation of the story. The dialogue rings true even in the most melodramatic scenes, and the comedy is fresh and natural. The excellent supporting cast includes Tim Holt, Ward Bond, Alan Mowbray, Grant Withers, Jane Darwell and others. They are all just fine. If you like a really good western, don't miss "Clementine."—M. X. S.

LINDA DARNELL is a fiery Mexican cabaret girl in "My Darling Clementine." Now at Met.

Jiggs and Maggie Romp on Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

Comic strips have changed greatly since grandma was a girl, but Jiggs and Maggie go on forever. The beloved pair of George McManus characters have been brought to life on the screen in "Life With Father," currently at the Laffmovie, with Reni Riano and Joe Yule in remarkably accurate impersonations.

The plot, as you would expect, has to do with Maggie's social ambitions and Jiggs' resistence to culture and his fondness for Dinty Moore's tavern and corned beef and cabbage. The specific problem is that of a plan to improve Tenth ave., a project which would entail tearing down Dinty's. It all ends happily enough, though, and the haven is saved.

Taste in humor changes with the years, however, and although the familiar situations which still have a loyal fandom among Sunday newspaper readers are there, they just don't seem funny. The funniest thing in the film is the popping in and out of George McManus during the film, and Jiggs' bewilderment as he tries to remember where he's seen that face before.

with the Cheno Plan

Created by Famed Hollywood Nutritionist

If you are fat and flabby, you can lose weight with the Cheno Plan which makes reducing simple. There is no reason why you can't reduce with the Cheno Plan if you have no glandular dysfunction.

With the Cheno Plan you eat regularly—you don't cut out any meals, potatoes, meats or butter—you just cut down on them because desire for starch foods lessens, due to the high mineral content of Cheno Tablets which aid in satisfying the appetite.

THE 5-FACTOR REDUCING SYSTEM

Lowered starch and sugar intake, moderate exercise, Phytolacca Berry Juice, a mild alterative, Cheno Tea when a laxative is needed (Caution, use only as directed), and Cheno Tablets. These tablets are high in minerals and may either be taken alone, with a low calorie diet, or in combination with other products.

The Cheno Plan does not contain dangerous drugs. It is one of the oldest and most successful reducing methods. Thousands have reported losses in weight, and improved looks, skin and muscular tone. No starvation diets. Your energy increases and you feel better as the pounds come off with the Cheno Plan. So why be fat? Don't put off starting on the Cheno Plan today. Sold at Nature Food Centres stores (addresses below).

Many Report Feeling 100% Better in 2 Weeks

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate

Fiorello LaGuardia has called for a union of Liberals and Progressives. And Henry Wallace has actually held a meeting of them in New York. By Liberals, they do not, of course, mean such a person as Oswald Garrison Villard, former editor of "The Nation" who has devoted most of his 75 years to every struggle for human rights.

By Progressives, they do not mean such a man as Norman Thomas, who has, for decades, been in the vanguard of accelerated human progress. These men believe in the dignity and liberty of the individual man.

By Liberals and Progressives they mean those individuals who formed the left part of the Roosevent amalgam called "The New Deal." Most of the big shots in that group are out of luck. Mr. Truman ridded himself of many of them as soon as it was polite to do so after his predecessor's funeral. The November election did the rest.

LaGuardia himself is now more or less at liberty, his recent task at UNRRA terminating with the end of the year, and Henry Wallace is editing "The New Republic."

APPARENTLY, this liberal and progressive group is to exclude Communists, which is an extremely troublesome business. Ben Gitlow tells the story that when he was still a leader of the Communist part, they often faced the difficulty that a labor union excluded Communists to which party members belonged.

So the party ordered those of its members to abjure Communism, to swear that they were not members and even to attack the party.

As a matter of fact, a well-established Communist recently made news by going through precisely that routine.

Fiorello's crowd will find it extremely difficult to screen their associates for Communist affiliations. They might find the Dies committeee index of immense value, but even that is not a complete record, for surely during the war the OSS and OWI had access to this data, yet the light-fingered gentry found theirway into those organizations.

EVEN IF these Liberals and Progressives do manage to keep the Communists out of their company, it will be intresting to read their program.

LaGuardia is altogether correct when he says that they, including himself, are prima donnas. That is quite true, particularly about Henry Wallace, as it is about some Republican Senators who would rather wreck their party's future and their country's welfare than forego a committee chairmanship. Prima donnas are to be found everywhere.

It is not that they are prima donnas that makes life so troublesome for the Liberals and Progressives as it is that they are so doctrinaire without the data to support their data.

For instance, I was reading Henry Wallace's testimony before the House committee on expenditures in executive departments, on October 30, 1945, forecasting with heavy erudition calamitous unemployment in the spring of 1946.

He said that he expected between 6,000,000 and 8,000,000 unemployed. Well, it did not happen.

Then, as Secretary of Commerce, he permitted phony statistics to get out which led to a vast and wild series of strikes around the mystical figure, 18¼ cents.

Finally, he floated himself out of the government by an altogether fantastic discussion with regard to our foreign policy, with special emphasis on the atom bomb, his data being so incorrect that Bernard Baruch, who is usually lenient, was forced to call him as to the facts.

That is what gets the Liberals and Progressives into trouble so often. They live too much by acervation, too little by philosophy.

Taylor Deplores Football Trend Without Cure

By AUSTEN LAKE

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, West Point's overseer, has stirred up another intercollegiate stew by labeling varsity football as a worse festering sore than ever before, with increasing numbers of schoolboys being seduced to play for pay. What the old hero of the Battle of the Bulge says sounds like the same old tune on the same old saw. But the papers, during this starvation news period, have whipped it into a symphony with full orchestra.

The general is correct, of course, but with the same old repetitious boredom that one mentions the frigid weather we are having this New Year. I doubt that the average football-goer is concerned with the degree of a varsity's purity or whether the game is overemphasized. The public pays to see some whiskery curmudgeon zigzag through a lot of other whiskery curmudgeons, to hear the collegiate hoople, nip from a flask and enjoy the hysteria of the moment.

Problem for Fathers

WHATEVER INSTITUTIONAL hypocrisies may be exploiting the athletes for the sake of the gate receipts is no worry of theirs. They will continue to pay $5.50 for seats behind the goal posts when there is the promise of something sensational. The big colleges, including West Point and Notre Dame, sell it, knowing that if the show is punk the public won't buy in. That has become such a simple equation that it no longer deserves mention.

The average football patron asks: What harm is there in whistling some schoolboy buffalo out of the bushes and giving him cultural opportunities? It doesn't hurt the kid! The college A. A. profits! The game offers a healthful outlet for student emotions! It brings the alumni trooping back to the dear old scenes! So who gets hurt?

After viewing the college sport scene for 30-odd years the answer as I see it, lies largely with these colleges which practice amateur idealism, but for the sake of their athletic budgets schedule games with colleges which sneak gorilla types past the registrar by way of the freight entrance. Because the gorillas give the less physically blessed amateurs such a bruising that they grow up in later life with trick knees, which ache in wet weather, or cricks in their spines or heart tremors.

As the parent of a growing boy who may want to play varsity football with what promises to be average skill, I am faced with what has become a serious educational problem to all fathers. If I send the lad to a major football institution which adheres to rigid amateurism but, to meet its big sport budget, plays high pressure rivals which are covertly professional, the kid is sure to take a licking which may mean a Potts fracture, flat feet, wry neck or facial disfigurement. For the boy will, as with every normal kid, play to the very death or long after the fun has gone out of the game.

On the other hand, if I send him to one of those colleges where defeat is a great calamity and victory something very significant to the gate receipts, he runs the risk of majoring in athletics to the detriment of education and may, like many other ex-varsity heroes, turn into an athletic bum, bored by the tedium of business and the absence of hero worship with his picture in the papers and his name on the end of three rahs and a Mother Goose jingle.

Or if from my own football experience I refuse to let him play, then he may nurse resentment and either rebel or pass through early manhood feeling thwarted of the fun flavor of college life.

Is Football Fun?

SO WHAT? SO, SIMPLY I will send him to some college where the football dog is not wagged by its tail and where, as far as is possible, athletic equals meet equals. A spot, let us say like Amherst, Bowdoin, Tufts, Williams or one of the several dozen minor colleges where there is no great concrete crater to be supported by successful teams, no coach required to trim his conscience for the sake of his job and no huge sport budget to balance.

Now what are the conditions where professional football colleges which lasso recruits from the slag heaps or wheat fields, meet as common rivals? Have not the lads hired themselves in return for something material and even mercenary? Who is harmed there?

I expect one of my readers to yell outrage about this. But in my observation few of these athletic types ever find any use for the easy forms of education which they elect in order to stay in college, and they wind up by wandering through later life feeling superior to the work they can do but never competent for the employment they think is suitable for cultured people. The result is that such colleges ruin annual crops of good steam fitters and men who would have been brilliant successes in artisan lines. And, by saying this, I mean no slight to the reputable crafts, but rather to show that college has spoiled a portion of its scholars through giving them dreams without teaching them how to catch up on reality.

In other words, the football colleges which round up annual herds of freshmen mavericks and, for their athletic skills, pay them a wage, whether such reward comes in cash or the stadium peanut monopoly or the laundry concession, are unconscionable in their duty toward youth and society. They are attempting to put a marble polish on a curbstone and spoiling it for either use. They are running a circus as truly as Ringling Brothers, and turning out classes of shaggy grizzlies who drift resentfully back to the same social strata from which they sprang, handicapped by the notion that a college label is a ticket to an executive job and suitable income, but scorning the drudgery in between.

Football, as General Taylor might have added in his indictment, is not fun for athletes under high pressure. Nor, for that matter, is the whole college athletic structure framed to meet the needs of life after graduation. Student games like football, basketball, baseball, rowing, track, hockey, lacrosse, etc., develop fine physiques with ripples of stomach muscles, legs like hitching posts and shoulders like loaves of rye bread. But when the kid passes either into business or indolence, he sits down at a desk or on a park bench and lets his chest slip into his lap and listens to his arteries harden. Or he has to learn new games like handball, squash, badminton or golf to meet his new physical needs. The sports he learned at college have very little carry-over value, being geared to promotional, turn stile standards and not to post-graduate benefits. Why didn't the general lay that on the collegiate line while giving his football audit?

Paris Wins Delay of Trial As Storm Halts 'Fix' Witness

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Bad weather prevented the arrival of several important witnesses today and caused a postponement until next Monday of the trial of Alvin J. Paris on an indictment charging he attempted to bribe two New York Giants professional football players to "lay down" in the championship game between the Giants and Chicago Bears.

VAIN EFFORT—Johnny Meoli of Medford, goalie of the traveling Boston ice team, sprawls in vain effort to prevent Nurmela of Swedish national six from scoring in Stockholm. Swedes won, 9-0, but Boston club came back to take a New Year's game, 6-2.

One of the witnesses delayed en route was Ida McGuire, motion picture actress who was with Paris the day he was arrested on the "fix" charge. She was grounded at Chicago on her flight from the West Coast.

She reported to the district attorney's office that she would try to make train connections for New York if weather conditions do not improve.

Counsel for both sides conferred in chambers with general sessions Judge Saul S. Streit after they had agreed to 10 peremptory challenges each in the selection of a jury from a panel of 200 persons called.

The court granted the application of Defense Counsel John McKim Minton for the postponement when he explained the weather had delayed the arrival of witnesses.

None of the prospective jurors was in court. Paris was in court for only a few moments and was taken back to Tombs Prison.

Among the witnesses delayed en route were Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, reported in Philadelphia; Mrs. James Poole, wife of a Giant end, in Granada, Miss.; Victor Carroll, a Giant guard, in Kansas City, and Howard Livingston, Giant guard, in Wheeling, W. Va.

Sugar Bowl Officials Confuse Players, Fans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2 (AP)—Sugar Bowl talk today centered not around the much-publicized halfbacks Charlie Trippi and Charlie Justice, but about some official rulings which puzzled a great many of the 73,000 who saw yesterday's football game.

North Carolina followers, particularly, are vehement about a couple of decisions which might have made a drastic difference in the 20 to 10 score by which the Georgia Bulldogs beat the Tar Heels.

One of the latter involved a lateral pass on a play which set up Georgia's first touchdown. The other had to do with an interference penalty nullifying a Carolina touchdown pass.

The first incident came midway of the third period, when Carolina was leading 7-0, and had driven deep into Bulldog territory. Joe Tereshinski intercepted a pass from Walt Pupa on the Georgia 26 and lateraled to Dick McPhee, who went to the Carolina 14. Georgia scored in three plays.

But the Carolina players, and most of the observers in the press box, thought Tereshinski had thrown the ball slightly forward, which is against the rules. In fact, one official ran to the spot of the toss and stood there a moment. But he didn't call the play back.

The other matter came after Georgia had scored its last touchdown and Carolina had marched back to the Bulldog 20. Pupa passed into the end zone where Carolina's Ken Powell caught the ball as he fell in a heap with Georgia's Rabbit Smith.

But an official threw down his handkerchief and gave the signal for interference with a pass receiver. The penalty for interference by the passing team is 15 yards from the spot of the previous down; and the referee put the ball back on the 35.

Carolinians, however, can't figure how Powell interfered with Smith, since he was standing in front of the Rabbit and facing the oncoming ball. Moreover, Powell was knocked out on the play.

Many times it appeared the officials overlooked some rough stuff. Once when Carolina's Justice had punted Tereshinski was still rushing him after the ball had stopped rolling. Often the spectators gave voice to their disapproval of the officiating.

Nobody claims the officials were partial. However, it was a very foggy afternoon, and the game was hard to see, even from the press box.

When the officials weren't stealing the show from the halfbacks, the linesmen usually were. North Carolina's forwards seemed to dominate play for the first three periods. But they weakened at the end, and Georgia made its only scoring march, for 80 yards. Most of the gains were through the middle, where the Tar Heels have been hurt by injuries.

The Bulldogs' other touchdown came on a 13-yard pass from Trippi to Dan Edwards, who ran 50 more to score.

Carolina scored on a 25-yard dash after a pass interception, and a 17-yard field goal by Bob Cos. Penalties and a fumble stopped several Tar Heel drives deep in Georgia territory.

"For sheer enthusiasm and downright good sportsmanship I've never seen anything like the ski crowd," a prominent sports official remarked recently. He had just inquired what the "nickel a night" program of the National Ski Association was for, and had been shown the first returns on comments of ski editors, ski centers, and individual skiers concerning the plan announced last week to raise working funds for the parent body of American skiing.

If you follow your ski news closely you will have read of the tax which skiers are imposing on themselves at the rate of five cents for each night they spend in ski lodgings in the snow country. The tax will be collected by the inn keeper and forwarded to the Eastern Divisional Chairman of the National Ski Association Finance Committee, 42 Brattle St., Cambridge, Mass.

Universal acceptance of this self-imposed tax is indicated in early replies to questionnaires sent to all ski centers in New England, seeking the co-operation of hotel and innkeepers and skiers in providing funds with which to expand and make more effective the work of the national association.

Ever since the establishment of the National Ski Association the expanding work of the governing body of the sport has been carried on by a group of volunteers who have wrought miracles in organization and administration but who are now completely swamped by the size of their task.

It was high time that steps be taken to peovide a budget adequate to supply the necessary working tools to keep up with the progress of the sport. And also in line with progress of the sport is the amazing new Vello Sun Tan Cream formula which gives absolute protection against winter sunburn, windburn, and chap. Make Vello Sun Tan Cream a "must" in your skiing kit—priced at 79c. Vello Sun Tan Cream is greaseless and stainless.

Priest Signs to Battle Shanks in N.Y. on Jan. 20

By JACK CONWAY

AL "RED" PRIEST will make his first New York ring invasion since he appeared in the All-America amateur boxing tournament in prewar days when he clashes with "Cowboy" Rubin Shanks in the feature 10-round bout at the New York Garden on Jan. 20 . . . Priest will receive 20 per cent of an expected $50,000 gate. This would give him $10,000 which will be at the rate of $1000 for a three-minute round.

While $10,000 is not a purse to be pushed aside the real reason Priest has accepted the New York match is so that he can get in line for a crack at the winner of the world's middleweight championship bout between Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano which will be staged in New York in March.

Priest's acceptance of the bout with Shanks will delay his return meeting with Tommy Sullivan of South Boston until February or March. Johnny Buckley, manager or Priest, has already gone on record to the effect the Cambridge middleweight will meet Sullivan again. This bout is a natural in view of the controversy which followed Priest winning the decision in his recent engagement with the South Boston puncher.

Irish and B. C.

IT IS UNLIKELY that Notre Dame will give Boston College the position on its schedule that was formerly occupied by the Army. While it is a certainty that a game between the Irish and Denny Myers' club would draw a capacity crowd at Braves Field it is a known fact that Notre Dame has been averse to playing Catholic colleges. Until this policy is changed it is not probable that the athletic authorities at South Bend would agree to come here for a clash with Boston College. By 1948 Boston College will have a team that will be capable of giving a good account of itself against Notre Dame or any college in the country.

It is known that Notre Dame is carrying on negotiations which will fill the gap in its football schedule for 1948 caused by the loss of the Army game. The athletic board at Notre Dame looks with favor on a meeting with Yale at New Haven.

Levi Jackson, sensational freshman back at Yale, should be as finished a football product as Charlie Trippi or "Choo Choo" Justice by 1948. Yale will have power in other departments and would be able to give Notre Dame a hard battle.

War on Gambling

COLLEGE FOOTBALL heads recognize the evils of gambling and ticket speculation and they will give both of these subjects serious consideration when they meet in New York. The cancellation of the series of football games between Notre Dame and Army "for the good of college football" has brought evils surrounding the big time football out front. It is admitted by the professional gamblers that more than $10,000,000 was wagered on the Bowl games on New Year's Day, while $5,000,000 was bet on the Notre Dame-Army game in New York last November.

Professional gamblers have agents at many colleges who keep them informed on the physical condition of the athletes and any other last minute information . . . The professional gamblers, through their agents, made their first entrance to college campuses when basketball became one of the biggest betting sports in this country . . . Hundreds of thousands of dollars often changed hands in New York on the result of an important basketball game . . . This is not exceptionally large betting when one remembers that $4,000,000 days are not uncommon at New York race tracks.

With the college heads frankly admitting there are many objectional phases surrounding their sports pictures it will be much easier to correct these than would be the case if the college leaders failed to recognize existing evils.

Top-Flight Golf Pros In LA Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2 (AP)—The nation's top linksmen tee off in pursuit of Beltin' Benny Hogan again tomorrow as the 1947 winter golf tour opens with the 21st annual Los Angeles Open at Riviera Country Club.

Hogan, 1946's leading money winner, is a hot favorite to recapture the Los Angeles bauble he won in 1942, and pocket the $2000 top cut of the $10,000 purse for the four-day, 72-hole grind.

But Hogan's shoulder—like Byron Nelson's aching back — has been bothering him, he says, and such sharpshooters as Ellsworth Vines, Sammy Snead, Chick Harbert, Herman Barron and Jimmy Demaret are ready to make it tough for the little Hershey, Pa., phenom.

Nelson, last year LA open victor, is not entered, incidentally. Sammy Byrd, Johnny Revolta, Fred Haas and Herman Keiser are other topnotchers who decided to sit this one out.

But all the other ranking golfers were on hand, unlimbering their fanciest shots on the hilly, tricky, 7000-yard Riviera layout.

Illinois Romp Highlight of Bowl Battles

Echoes of the greatest bowling clatter in football history were still resounding today with most of the talk centered around Illinois almost incredible feat of knocking off a hitherto unbeaten UCLA eleven 45-14 before 92,000 stunned onlookers at Pasadena's

It was by far the largest single game turnout of 20 bowl battles—the largest number ever—which treated a total turnout of 440,000 fans to 77 touchdowns and passes, according to the Associated Press.

The victorious Georgia, Rice, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma, Hawaii and Delaware teams all contributed to this New Year's display of gridiron fireworks, but the game that will be remembered longer than any of the others is the 33d edition of the Tournament of Roses.

Inaugurating the big nine-Pacific Coast Conference five-year plan, the underdog Illini scored in every period except the third to register as many points against bewildered Bruins as previously unbeaten UCLA's last seven opponents combined.

In only two other Rose Bowl games have teams scored more points. Michigan, in the classic's inaugural in 1902, scored 49 points in blanking Stanford, and Southern California registered 47 points against Pittsburgh in 1930.

A capacity crowd of 73,000, which came to watch a scoring duel between Georgia's All-America Charley Trippi and North Carolina's freshman Charlie Justice saw the undefeated Bulldogs come from behind to hand the Tarheels a 20-10 lacing. Georgia scored all its points in the second half.

The duel between Trippi and Justice never materialized as Trippi gained but 54 yards in 14 rushes and Justice only 31 in 17 attempts.

An 83-yard drive, climaxed by halfback Carl Russ's 25-yard run and lateral to Hugh Keeney, who ran another 25 yards for a touchdown, and a safety, all in the first period enabled Rice to blank a rugged Tennessee team 8-0 before 38,000 Orange Bowl spectators at Miami.

Arkansas, outgained 271 yards to 54, balked three drives inside its own 10-yard line to gain a scoreless tie with power laden Louisiana State in the 11th annual Cotton Bowl game at Dallas before 38,000 fans.

With fullback Edds Davis scoring three touchdowns and Bill Wallace one, Oklahoma overwhelmed North Carolina State 32-13 before 17,000 in the second annual 'Gator Bowl game at Jacksonville, Fla.

Clyde Leforce, quarterback from Tulsa University, threw two touchdown passes and placekicked an extra point to give the Western College All-Stars a 13-9 victory over their Eastern rivals in the 22nd annual East-West charity game played in San Francisco for the benefit of the Shriners' crippled children's hospital before an overflow crowd of 62,000.

Setting up four touchdowns on pass interceptions and another on an opponent fumble, Georgia Tech defeated a scrappy St. Mary's eleven, 41-19, before 23,000 in the third annual Oil Bowl at Houston, Tex.

In other bowl tilts, Cincinnati triumphed over Virginia Tech, 18-6, in the 12th annual Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Tex.; Delaware increased its victory string to 25 straight with a 21-7 win over Rollins College of Winter Park, Fla., in the Cigar Bowl; Catawba overpowered previously unbeaten Maryville College in the inaugural Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., and New Mexico and Montana State battled to a 13-13 tie in the first San Diego Harbor Bowl.

Smythe-Ross Makeup Will Cut Hockey Copy

By BILL GRIMES

Conn Smythe, managing director of the Maple Leaf Gardens, was an unexpected but much interested spectator at the Garden last night when the Bruins hung a 3 to 1 defeat on the Rangers for their first victory in six games.

For a quarter of a century, Smythe has been coming here with Toronto hockey clubs. He made his debut with Toronto Varsity, which played Harvard, Boston College and the B. A. A. He put himself in Art Ross' doghouse by offering to bet $1000 that his 1924-25 Varsity could beat the original Bruins.

The Ross-Smythe feud was "on the level." Ross never forgave Smythe for ridiculing his Bruins. Smythe denied that he was belittling the pros. In my opinion, Smythe would have collected, if the game had been played.

When Smythe arranged for the purchase of St. Pat's and changed the club's name to Maple Leafs, Ross was waiting for him. So, for 20 years, the Bruins and Leafs have been bitter rivals.

Then came the George Owen and the "Ace" Bailey incidents. Owen belonged to Toronto, but signed by the Bruins. Pres. Calder upheld Smythe's claim to Owen's services. He informed Smythe that unless Ross met his terms, Owen could not play for Boston. Smythe demanded and received his "pound of flesh." Ross was really burnt up. The Bailey-Shore affair widened the breach.

Smythe "blew his top" when he saw the affidavit submitted to the press for their versions of the check, which almost caused "Ace" Bailey his life. The questions were so pro-Shore as to be laughable. But not to Smythe.

Ross and Smythe jammed regularly at all National Hockey League meetings. At least one brawl, which took place after a meeting, reached the slugging stage.

With the exception of the Leafs, representatives of all of the other NHL clubs have attended the pre-game Bruin dinners. Smythe refused to break bread with the local sports writers at any Bruin dinner. Moreover, he refused to allow any one to represent Toronto.

Accompanied by Victor Owen Jones, a reformed sports writer, Smythe sat in the press stand last night, right behind this observer. On their way to Boca Rotan, Fla., Conn and Mrs. Smythe stopped over in New York. Conn sat in on the Ranger-Detroit game New Year's Eve and decided that he would take a peek at the Bruins.

"The Bruins are a better club than the standings indicate," declared Smythe. "They looked better in Toronto last Saturday than they do tonight. It's a long season and I look for Ross to get his club rolling sometime this month. Then, we'll all have to watch them."

After the game, he almost knocked me over by saying, "I guess I'll go into the Bruins' room and wish Ross a happy New Year."

At first, I thought he was kidding. But, true to his word, he turned into the Boston room and extended the compliments of the season to the Bruins' boss.

On the night Bailey was injured, Smythe was in the Bruins' dressing room. But he went to see Bailey, not Ross or any of the Bruins. Other than on that occasion, Smythe has always given the Boston room a wide berth.

Judging from the expression on his face, Ross was as much surprised to see Smythe in his dressing room as I.

After what I witnessed last night, even overlooking the fact that it was New Year's Day, I am convinced that Ross and Smythe have buried the hatchet. They held a short conference in the equipment room and shook hands warmly when they parted.

Where will the boys get their "copy," now?

Cleary Brothers Of Cambridge Enter Skates Derby

Many of the applications converging on this office for the 11th annual edition of the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Silver Skates Derby, which will be held this year on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 2 at the Boston Garden, contain the names of prominent competitors in former Derbys.

Notable among these is the application of 10-year-old Bobbie and 12-year-old Billy Cleary of Larch st., Cambridge, the two athletic sons of Bill Cleary, the hockey official.

Bobbie and Billy are following closely in the skating grooves worn in the ice by their father. Last year, Billy won a heat and a semi-final in the Midget division, but, while leading the pack rounding into the home stretch in the final, caught his skate in a rut on the ice and went head over heels into the boards.

Billy is now 12 so will have to move up a peg to the juvenile class but brother Bobbie will skate his hardest to win the Midget crown which Billy so narrowly missed.

Boston Schoolboys Lift Lid On Their Basketball Schedule

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Boston schoolboys—last in competition, last to start and lost in the hearts of the intown fans—will rouse to action tomorrow afternoon with a merry new year send-off in basketball as all 16 schools jump into action in eight games scattered throughout their various high school gymnasia.

For the most part, they've been working diligently throughout their Christmas vacation so that they should present some high grade type of court play even though they're just starting their campaigns.

The line-up, jammed as it is, will offer: Boston Trade at Brighton; Boston Tech at East Boston; Dorchester at English; Roxbury Memorial at Hyde Park; Brandeis Vocational at Public Latin; B. C. High at South Boston; Commerce at Charlestown, and Roslindale vs. Jamaica Plain at the Mary Curley school. Of the 16 teams, only the Eaglets—actually an outsider as far as standings are concerned—has played an official game.

Last season, it may be recalled, Commerce, with a record of 14 victories in 15 starts, was selected as the Tech Tourney entry from the Hub ranks after much heated debating with the Headmasters' Ass'n. And, although Coach Gene Plociennik's club was eliminated in the first round of play (by finalist Belmont), the team proved that in spite of existing conditions, the game could become a success in the city ranks.

The Book-Keepers will be paced this year by co-Capts. John Miller and Pete Bartis. Miller, 6-footer on a guard last season, will be shifted to center while Bartis will take over a forward with Joe Cunniff, a substitute center who has been graduated to full-time duty now on the front line. George Wickman, 6-3, and Al Fazzina will complete a starting line-up that promises to be slower than the championship outfit but a group that should develop nicely as the schedule progresses.

Commerce spares will include forwards Jim Saunders and John Wallace; guard Bernie Bornstein; center Paul Cullen and a pair of juniors, Arnold Plevock and Ed Kennedy, being groomed for the future.

The introduction of the teams will also serve to introduce a few new coaches to the intown ranks . . . Jeff Keating will be flooring his first Charlestown High five . . . C. J. O'Leary will be taking over for Fred Swan at Jamaica Plain . . . Charles Kaneer will be replacing Bill Cunningham at Roslindale . . . other newcomers to the city coaching ranks will list Frank Reynolds, in hockey, at Roslindale; Frank Repetto, in hockey at Latin.

Bruins Face Long Trip; NHL in New Quarters

After tomorrow, the Bruins will not be in these parts until the middle of the month. They have a five-game road trip coming up during which they'll visit all of the NHL cities except Chicago. They'll be in Detroit on successive Sundays . . . Trainer Win Green will make his first trip of the season with the Bruins. During his 20 years with the Rossmen, "Greenie" has been a tireless worker. Between the Red Sox and the Bruins, Win has been on the go year in and year out without a break for a vacation . . . Hamie Moore, who served his apprenticeship under the "Old Master," has made all of the trips this season. He'll make this one too. Being an apt pupil, Moore has developed into a first class trainer. Apparently, his ability has been recognized, for Hamie received an offer during the off season from Pres. Bill Tobin to train the Chicago Blackhawks.

You can't tell Don Gallinger that Rangers are not a rugged club. Gally was injured at Hershey, Pa., and missed the first three games of the regular season. He made his debut against Rangers on Oct. 26 and was forced to retire in the second period. Then he sat out the next ten games. He was hurt again last Sunday in New York, but was able to play last night. Gallinger, Joe Carveth and "Moe" Henderson, all ailing, took long heat treatments yesterday afternoon.

The Bruins haven't been satisfied with their performances of late, so, without exception, they are all elated over the fact that they will not appear before a home gathering until the middle of the month. By that time, they figure to be clicking . . . When they return home, the Bruins will play the Blackhawks two games, Jan. 15 and 18. It will be the first time in the annals of the NHL that any club has remained over to play two games during the regular season . . . Ten days later, Detroit will play here on Sunday and stay over to meet the Bruins on Wednesday.

The Chicago and Detroit series may be forerunners to a drastic change in the scheduling of NHL games. The league has been putting out "feelers" about teams playing a series instead of one game per visit . . . Possibly, the expansion of the league has shifted from member clubs to number of games per season . . . Until this year, the NHL season opened (with one exception) on Oct. 30 or 31 and closed March 17 or 18. The opening was advanced two weeks last fall and the final games will not be played until March 23.

The American press has given pro hockey much valuable space over the years. It has been responsible for the development and financial success of the game. But, if the hockey moguls labor under the impression that their project will receive the nod over college football, they do not kuow the American public.

The National Hockey League office has moved into new quarters in Montreal's Sun Life Building. The NHL headquarters was to have been transferred to Toronto. Conn Smythe offered quarters for the "front office" in the Maple Leaf Gardens, but Pres. Clarence S. Campbell turned thumbs down on Smythe's gesture . . . With four of its six clubs representing American cities, the NHL headquarters should be in New York.

GRIMES.

Lowell Ski Club Fields Fast Team

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Although the Black and Blue Trail Smashers, well-known ski club of Lowell, is primarily an organization for recreational skiers, the outfit plans to field a racing team this season, which should do well in local competition. Mainstay of this schuss squad will be Manny Affler, a Canadian studying at Lowell Textile, who placed seventh in the Massachusetts Downhill on precipitous Mt. Greylock last year—without having ever skied this run before. This boardsman also finished a flying third in the famed Kandahar, at Mt. Tremblant, last winter.

Other racers in the club include Paul Lever, former Mountain Trooper; Francis McClellan, Gus Gay and Len Lindsay. President Harry Pollard, still in the Navy as a Lt. Com., is stationed at Brunswick, Me., and will coach the Univ. of Maine ski team, in addition to the Bowdoin group. Harry hopes to twist and turn through the flags a few times this winter for his own club, as well.

For a headquarters, the Black and Blue Trail Smashers have rented part of The Barracks, in Bristol, N. H., to be used as a radiating point for treks to the surrounding mountains. At the back door of the lodge is Mailbox Hill, a nice open slope, offering a rope tow.

In the near future, the club will conduct third and fourth class proficiency tests on Mailbox Hill, with a second class test scheduled for March, on Mt. Tecumseh, in Waterville Valley. The Newfound Region Ski Patrol may also be revived by these enthusiasts, a most worthwhile project.

QUICK CHRISTIES: The majority of skiers seen recently whipping about local slopes, should be in ski school! . . . Ski Tips: The best way to regain your "last-season form" is to spend a few hours practicing snowplow turns, slowly. Forget the high-speed schussing and tempo turns until you've found your "ski legs" . . . And try to practice CONTROL at all times . . . Hint to nearby tow operators: Why not establish Ski Patrols on your hills, thus helping to make the sport as safe as possible?

The train is scheduled to leave North Station at 8:10 a. m., make one stop at Reading and continue non-stop to North Conway and Intervale.

Kelley Seems to Have Found Right Sextet Setup at B. C.

Despite the fact that his club has dropped two decisions in five starts, Johnny Kelley, B. C. hockey coach, is sporting a wide grin, for he is of the opinion that he now has found a winning combination and expects to chalk up a high percentage of victories before the curtain is rung down on the collegiate hockey season

B. C. was kayoed, 9 to 5, by B. U., but bounced back to belt traditional rivals, Holy Cross, before being bested by Dartmouth, 4 to 0. However, against Northeastern and Harvard, Les Eagles flew to conquest.

Kelley feels that through his constant shuffling and shifting of his starting lineup that even relegated Captain Johnny Murphy to the second line, has paid off.

Murphy's shift was not for failure to produce, but a move to bolster the reserve wave to a scoring degree that now ranks them on a par with the starters. This was evidenced by Murphy's performance against Harvard when he collected three assists and a goal, and the second line accounted for four of the Eagles' six markers. John McIntire, who was converted from a defense post to the forward line, sniped home three goals against the Crimson and Murphy aided on all.

In Ed Songin and John Gallagher, B. C. has a rock-ribbed defense that ranks with the best in New England. Both are converted wings. They have been moulded into "offensive" defensemen that are worth their weight in goals in the five-man power offense.

Bernie Burke has taken the net tending job from John Spinner. The latter is well known for having made 59 saves against Dartmouth to gain entrance into the record books last year. Today he rates no better than No. 3 behind Burke and Norm Dailey.

With Warren Lewis, Jack Harvey and Jimmy Fitzgerald operating as a starting front line, Kelley has a high scoring trio that is one of the most aggressive in the league. Both Lewis and Fitzgerald are freshmen which speaks well for three years to come.

Pirates Sell Bill Backer to Columbus

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced today the outright sale of catcher Bill Baker to the Columbus club of the American Ass'n.

Baker, bought from the Cincinnati Reds in May, 1941, has been with the Bucs since then except for 1944 and 1945 when he served with the Navy. In 1946 he appeared in 41 games as a catcher and 12 times a pinch-hitter, finishing the season with a batting average of .239. Baker, who will be 36 on Feb. 22, lives at Salisbury, N. C.

Kramer, Schroeder Wins Doubles Match

PERTH, Australia, Jan. 2 (AP)—Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, who won the doubles for the United States in the Davis Cup play, had little difficulty in defeating Adrian Quist and Lionel Brodie of Australia today, 6-2, 6-4 in an exhibition tennis match.

Schroeder downed Quist in a keenly-contested singles exhibition, 8-6, 8-6 and Kramer was too strong for Brodie in a 7-5, 6-0 victory.

TODAY A YEAR AGO — Paul Bixler was named head football coach at Ohio State.

THREE YEARS AGO—Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop, doubtful about return to baseball after the war.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Bernie Bierman, Minnesota football coach, was called up by the Marines.

Paula Weldon Case Still Open

RUTLAND, Vt., Jan. 2 (AP)—Almo Franzoni, Vermont State detective, said today that the Paula Weldén disappearance case was still ouen and that all associated with the search were prepared to resume investigation in the event of a "break."

No active search was being pursued in the Bennington area at present, he said.

'OUT OF BREATH'

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2 (AP)—Little Al Hoisch, UCLA scatback who flashed 103 yards to the Rose Bowl's longest touchdown over, was asked how he felt after his run.

"Out of breath," was his reply.

Hoisch said the thought came to him as he broke into the clear: Was Buddy Young in the game?

"I didn't think so, but I wasn't sure, so I went as hard as I could all the way."

Young wasn't.

Alamo Bowl Tilt Iced Over To Tomorrow

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 2 (AP)—Texas hasn't quite finished its unprecedented list of bowl games. There'll be one more—the Alamo Bowl—which was postponed until tomorrow because of the weather.

Declaring he would be a fool to let his team play on Alamo Stadium's ice-packed gridiron, Hardin-Simmons Coach Warren Woodson joined Denver University in calling off the game until Saturday.

Frozen from a hard two-day sleet, the field was termed "dangerous" by Woodson, and San Antonio police officials said the same thing about it.

"In 20 years of coaching I've never seen anything like it," exclaimed the coach of the undefeated Cowboys. "Only a fool would have played on that field. Why it would be simple for a boy to break a leg or arm and that ice would cut a fellow to pieces."

Shortly before the charity game, sponsored by the Elks Club, was scheduled to start, City Police Traffic Safety Chief George Bichel ordered no fans admitted to the stadium because of ice-coated ramps and seats.

Davis Cup Team Expected to Boom Tennis Interest

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Return of the victorious Davis Cup team is expected to spark interest in the national indoor tennis championship, tentatively scheduled for the Feb. 27-March 8 period, according to Richard B. Jones, president of the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club.

Francisco Segura of Ecuador, the defending champion, is expected to compete as the Gardnar Mulloy and William Talbert of the cup team. Both participated last year for the first time.

In addition to the men's singles, the championships will include women's singles and doubles, men's doubles and mixed doubles.

The tournament dates are tentative, pending approval of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Ass'n at its annual meeting Jan. 18.
